SHARP SHOCKS WRECK CITIES ALONG COAST

Communication Lines Down, Chilean President Sends Planes to Survey Area.

400-MILE SECTOR HIT

Homes, Buildings Destroyed by Series of Temblors at Midnight, Reports Say.

(By Associated Press)

SANTIAGO, Chile—Three Chilean military planes sped south today to check unconfirmed reports that 2,000 persons had been killed in the Concepcion area by midnight earthquakes which shook a 400-mile strip of Chile's coast and shattered normal communications.

Concepcion is a city of 77,000 inhabitants 250 air miles south of Santiago, the capital.

Sends, Physicians, Nurses.

President Pedro Aguirre Cerda and seceral cabinet members departed for the quake area on a special train with 40 physicians, 70 nurses and medical supplies.

First reports said the majority of houses were destroyed in Renaico, small town 50 miles south of Concepcion, andthe railway disrupted in numerous places. Forty per cent of Concepcion's houses were reported demolished.

Early reports had accounted for 14 dead in the quake area which included Talca, a city of 45,000 inhabitants.

The radio operator at Talcahuano, close by Concepcion, advised the Valparaiso navy station that electric power was off at Concepcion and that fire was noticed.

Reports Seven Dead.

Seven were reported dead in the area between Talca and Angol, to the south. Other reports gave four killed in Angol itself and said many buildings were destroyed.

The first temblor rocked Santiago for one-half minute at 11:35 p. m. and sent screaming children and women from their homes into the streets. No damage was done here, however. In other cities shocks lasted more than a minute.

Valparaiso, 60 miles northwest of Santiago, was the northernmost point to report damage but the shocks extended from there eastward 75 miles across the country and into the Andean provinces of Argentina, San Juan and Mendoza.

Drops 4,300 From Election Rolls For Failing To Vote

Nearly one-fourth of the 19,500 registered voters in Mansfield last year will be ineligible to vote at the next election unless they re-register, board of election officials said today.

In the greatest disfranchisement in the history of the county, the election board removed 4,350 names from the registration list because that many former voters failed to vote at the last two general elections.

Walter Underwood, deputy clerk of the board, said notices would be mailed within a few days telling them of the board's action and informing them that they must register at least 28 days preceding the next election in August if they want to vote in the primary.

Registrations will be received any time until the 28-day deadline at the election board office in the courthouse basement, Underwood said.

A DOG'S LIFE

Statistics prove that city dogs live longer than country dogs. The average age of the cosmopolitan canine is 11 years, while his country cousin has only nine years to enjoy the wide open spaces. Probably the longevity of the city dog is due to the better care he receives or it might be that dogs just naturally thrive on excitement. At any rate, don't think you're doing your pet poodle a favor by boarding him out on a farm—you're simply shortening his life!

If winter bills are already leading you a dog's life—forget it. Just look around the attic, select the pieces of furniture you no longer use or need, phone The News-Journal Ad Taker, place an ad, and you'll sell them before you know it. For cash, too.

GALE PUTS SKIDS UNDER MERCURY

Temperature Falls to 12 Above as Snowstorm Hits City; It Will Be Warmer Thursday.

Mansfielders who chased their hats and buttoned up their overcoats to brace the blustering gale which swept the city in the last 24 hours were promised relief today as the weather bureau forecast a break in the cold that has held temperatures in the vicinity of zero.

The forecast calls for light snow tonight and Thursday, with continued cold tonight and warmer weather tomororw.

Clearing skies this afternoon however, failed to bring about a rise in the mercury which was recorded at 12 degrees above zero at noon.

A swirling snowstorm that rode in on a southwest gale yesterday forced the temperature from a high of 31 to the 12 above zero last night.

The snow which caused slipperly streets and highways was

2-Way Radios to Be Installed on Police Cars This Week.

Two-way radio communication for Mansfield's police department will become a reality Sunday when four ultra high frequency transmitters go into service on the city's four police cruisers.

The mobile transmitters, which will operate on a 30,000 kilocycle band and will have a signal strength of 10 miles, will be installed Sunday, Police Chief Meade K. Bates said upon the receipt of a construction permit from the Federal Communications commission in Washington.

The radio equipment, designed to supplement the present car receiving apparatus, was purchased with $700 raised by public subscription.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Lou Gehrig, durable first baseman of the New York Yankees, signed his 1939 contract for his fifteenth season with baseball's world champions.

JURORS HEAR OF SHOOTING AT 'BELLING'

Case of Knox County Youth to Come Before Panel This Afternoon.

FACES FOUR INDICTMENTS

Tells County Authorities How He Forged Check; 21 Other Cases on Jury Docket.

Facing indictment on four charges as the result of a shooting episode Monday night at a "belling" party at his father's home near Bellville, Carl Spayde, 20, of near Amity, Knox county, today awaited action by the county grand jury which was scheduled to hear his case this afternoon.

The case is one of 22 which was to be presented to the grand jury today in its first session in the January term of court.

Outgrowth of Party.

Although no formal charges had been filed against Spayde, Prosecutor G. W. Marriott said he might be indicted for shooting with intent to wound, automobile theft, forgery, and carrying concealed weapons as the outcome of a party during which the youth allegedly shot at his step-mother and former sweetheart.

Young Spayde related to county authorities yesterday how he had forged a $20 check in Bellville to buy new clothes for his father's wedding party and then shot at his step-mother, Mrs. Ann Spayde, 23, after he was ejected from their home.

The youth then took his father's car and fled south to the Knox county farm where he was employed, he said. Sheriff E. P. Long and Deputy Glenn Freeman arrested him there at noon yesterday.

Goes to Celebrate.

Young Spayde lost his sweetheart to his father about a week ago when his parent and the girl were married, but the son contended that he held no ill feelings and went to his father's home with three companions to celebrate the marriage,

Ordered out of the house when he is said to have become involved in an argument with his father, young Spayde said he went to the rear of the home and fired a .22 caliber revolver at his stepmother through a window. She was not injured.

Young Spayde told Deputy Sheriff Freeman that he obtained the gun from his mother who is divorced and lives in Bellville.

The grand jury was to investigate a similar shooting case against Mrs. Elma Ramsey, 26, colored, Mansfield, who allegedly fired a shotgun charge at her husband through a window at their home here last November

REJECTS B. & O. RECEIVER SUIT

U. S. Judge Turns Down Petition Filed By Bondholder.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Federal District Judge Murray Hulbert today had denied a Baltimore & Ohio railroad bondholder's petition for appointment of a receiver for the road.

The bondholder, Oscar Getz of Chicago, filed suit in U. S. district court here last Saturday against the carrier and its trustee, the Central Trust company, alleging they had violated the indenture of the B. & O.'s general and refunding mortgage bonds. Getz owns $10,000 of these bonds.

Judge Hulbert also denied Getz's petition for removal of the trustee and appointment of a receiver for the B. & O. collateral.

Lets Final Contracts For School Program Thursday

Board to Open Bids for Remodeling of 3 Buildings Estimated at $40,000; Junior High Jobs Delayed.

The Mansfield board of education is due to complete the letting of construction contracts for the $1,000,000 school building program tomorrow when awards will be made for remodeling of the Bowman, Hedges and Bushnell school buildings.

Bids on projects estimated to cost $40,960 will be opened at noon Thursday by the board with the letting of contracts scheduled to follow immediately.

The projects will include general construction work on the buildings and installation of heating, plumbing and electrical equipment.

Total estimates on the buildings are Bowman, $22,654; Bushnell, $10,014, and Hedges, $8,292.

Contracts Total $820,000.

Contracts totaling $820,079 have been awarded in the huge program which is scheduled for completion by the end of 1939.

A $25,000 shop addition at Senior high school, first unit in the program, will be ready for use early in February, relieving crowded conditions at the high school and providing for expansion of machine shop courses.

Improvement of heating, lighting and plumbing facilities at eight of the city's older elementary buildings will be completed next.

Cold weather has delayed work on the John Simpson and Johnny Appleseed Junior high school buildings which make up $900,000 of the total project.

With approximately a dozen men employed on the Johnny Appleseed project, work on the foundation for the building was to start this week.

A delay in razing the old John Simpson building, which is about half completed, has held up the beginning of work on the new structure to be erected on the same site.

He's Out of Luck On Land and In Air

DENVER—(AP)—Samuel H. Giberson, 21, hasn't much choice in getting around.

His airplane crashed in a residential district. His pilot's license was suspended indefinitely.

Then officers charged him with driving his car on the wrong side of the street. The judge tacked a 90-day suspension on his driver's license.

URGES NEW TAX

Ohio Lawmaker Seeks to Ban Jap Earthenware Imports.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Representative Secrest (D-Ohio) wants to prevent importation of earthenware from Japan.

He introduced a bill yesterday providing an excise tax of $5 a dozen on imported earthenware, crockery and other articles. Last year he submitted a similar bill, which died in the ways and means committee, providing a 40-cent tax. The higher amount, his assistants said, would lead to exclusion of such imports.

Ohio pottery makers have long complained of foreign competition, particularly from Japan.

The tax would apply to imports made 60 days after the tax went into effect.

Mechanical Trouble Slows Up 'Sustained' Traffic Campaign

The police department's "sustained law enforcement program" ran into a little trouble today—mostly mechanical.

The "cycle patrol," which had been charged with traffic law enforcement—a principal part of the campaign—had to be taken off the streets yesterday, because of "radio trouble," Chief Meade K. Bates said today.

And it wasn't out today, either, because Patrolman Clare Kyler was off duty, his regular day off.

But it'll be back tomorrow, the chief said.

Nevertheless, payment of traffic fines continued, department records showed, with a total of 49 $1 fines paid since Saturday. Twenty drivers paid their fines yesterday, only six less than for all of last November.

The number may jump considerably during the day, since motorists are given until Wednesday to make their payments, no matter what day of the week they are tagged.

INDICTMENT OF TREASURER AND SON REPORTED

Two Ashlanders Are Named in True Bills as Panel Ends 2-Day Session, Report.

CHARGES KEPT SECRET

Investigation Into Alleged Shortage in County's Accounts Closes.

ASHLAND—H. O. Faber, Ashland county treasurer, and his son, Olen R. Faber, a former deputy in the treasurer's office, were named by the Ashland county grand jury in secret indictments returned today, it was learned from reliable sources. The grand jury session ended today.

Father and son were jointly indicted on three counts, it was learned, although the actual charges in the grand jury findings were not revealed.

The grand jury investigation, however, concerned itself with an alleged shortage of funds in the treasurer's office.

Notice Due Today.

It was expected that both Faber and his son, who resigned Jan. 3, would be served with notice of their indictment this afternoon.

Part of the evidence the grand jury considered, it was reported, was a sworn statement of Walter Shafer, state examiner, that he had found a shortage of $1,338 in sales tax accounts.

Faber is also said to have signed a voluntary statement last November in which he admitted that there were certain shortages in his accounts.

Judge C. C. Chapman, who ordered the grand jury investigation off alleged irregularities in the treasurer's office, said the customary three days would be allowed before arraignment on indictments. Meanwhile, it was expected that Faber would continue to perform the duties of treasurer.

In Session Two Days.

The grand jury was in session two days, examined nine witnesses and returned five true bills in five cases. Only two of these, it was reported, did not concern the treasurer and his son

JAILED IN ROW

WPA Worker Gets 30 Days for Hitting Youth With Shovel.

A 62-year-old WPA worker who allegedly struck a co-worker with a shovel during an altercation on the Mason street sewer project yesterday, was sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $25 when he was convicted today in municipal court on a charge of assault and battery.

He is Robert D. McClain who testified that he had "tapped" James Kondos, Seventh avenue, with the shovel because the youth had been "pestering" him.

Kondos told the court that the older man wielded the shovel after he had playfully tossed some dirt on McClain's spade.

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch threatened to clear the crowded courtroom when one of the spectators let out a subdued whistle as the judge pronounced sentence.

"We don't need a chorus like that in here—and if there is any more such outbursts I'll clear the court room," he warned.

CLEARS SUSPECT

Detective Says Salesman Not Linked With Torso Murders.

CLEVELAND—(INS)—Detective Peter Merylo, torso murder investigator, said today that a 50-year-old salesman of medical supplies was not a suspect in Cleveland's series of dismemberment killings.

The man, picked up after he supposedly boasted to a woman that he had dissected human bodies, told Merylo he had been talking chiefly to impress the woman. Using the man's own phrase, Merylo described him as a "Baron Munchausen."

Moorish Regiment First to Pass Into City; Fascist Leaders Claim Capital Will Be Their's By Nightfall; All Government Departments Moved.

BARCELONA—(AP)—Fifteen Americans, fleeing the beleaguered Barcelona area, had to run a gantlet of bombs today before they reached safety aboard the Omaha and the U. S. destroyer Badger. One bomb fell 100 feet from the refugees as they stood on a breakwater waiting for a small boat to take them out to the warships.

HENDAYE, France (At the Spanish Frontier)—An Insurgent military dispatch said Generalissimo Francisco Franco's Insurgent troops entered Barcelona this morning.

The advance guard of the Insurgent armies marched into the Spanish government capital after tightening a ring around the city on three sides, reports from field headquarters said.

Barcelona still was in government hands, however.

A direct communication from the capital said government troops still held out in the city proper.

An Insurgent dispatch predicted complete occupation by tonight.

The Moorish army corps commanded by Gen. Juan Yague which had driven northeastward along the coast from Tarragona was reported the first Insurgent unit to enter the government capital.

The government fort of Montjuich, a Gibraltar-like rock towering over Barcelona at its southern edge, rose above this column.

Insurgents Take Tarrasa.

Franco's island columns, converging on Barcelona from the west and northwest, were reported to have captured the important town of Tarrasa, 15 miles northwest of Barcelona.

On this flank the insurgents were pressing on toward the sea in a drive to cut off Barcelona from the north and leave the city's defenders without hope of outside help.

The evacuation of government departments from Barcelona was completed during the night. The new seat of government remained officially a secret, lest it become a target for insurgent bombing planes.

At the border, however, it was learned that most of the Barcelona ministers had gone to Figueras, in the far northeastern corner of Spain and only 15 miles from the French border. (Gerona, 20 miles south of Figueras, also has been mentioned as the possible new capital).

Refugees Want Ships.

Refugees of many nationalities clustered at Caldetas on the coast 24 miles northeast of Barcelona, awaiting evacuation by their warships standing off shore. Caldetas long has been the site of foreign embassies.

The United States cruiser Omaha, the French cruiser Suffren and other vessels were anchored close to where insurgent bombs were falling from planes harassing the government lines of communications.

Military advices said that the government armies were gradually falling back to a new defense line organized in advance and designed to protect the northeastern corner of Spain even after Barcelona's fall.

The insurgent offensive, which began Dec. 23 from lines some 80 miles west of Barcelona, quickened its pace as it penetrated its chief objective—government Spain's third capital in the two and a half years old war.

The insurgents' superiority in guns and planes became more telling as the front became narrower in and around Barcelona.

Quick Surrender Looms.

Military observers at the border believed that only a covering force had been left by the government in Barcelona to protect its retirement and that the city would fall instead of repeating the heroic resistance of Madrid—besieged in November, 1936, and still holding out.

Before the Moors' direct attack began insurgent artillery was blasting Barcelona and its suburbs.

Over the whole battle scene was heard the monotonous and threatening drone of insurgent bombers which yesterday virtually wrecked the port district of Barcelona.

WASHINGTON: U. S. Decides To Continue 'Hands Off' Policy

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt has definitely decided to continue a "hands off" policy on the Spanish civil war and not to lift the arms embargo by executive proclamation, International News Service learned today.

Before the end of the present session of congress, however, a general revision of the present neutrality act will be sought, as forecast in the chief executive's "state of the union" message with which he opened the congress.

Swiftly moving events of the past 72 hours in Catalonia, which have seen Generalissimo Francisco Franco's Insurgent legions sweep unchecked into Barcelona's suburbs, have convinced Washington that Loyalist Spain is another "lost cause."

To lift the Spanish arms embargo at this time, it is held—an action which the world would interpret as an American move to supply arms to the Loyalists—would be an empty gesture so far as the Loyalists were concerned, and a dangerous one for the United States. In the Washington view it might entangle this country in the troubled European waters which it sought to avoid by invoking the neutrality act in the beginning.

IN BRIEF: Summary of Civil War Since Army Revolt in 1936

(By Associated Press)

STARTED: As an army revolt against the popular front (government) regime in 1936.

BECAME: A clash of authoritarian and leftist political doctrines threatening to involve all Europe; a struggle between the small, well-trained insurgent army aided by German and Italian men and guns, and the huge government militia army, once bolstered by volunteers of a dozen nationalities.

GAINS: Insurgents advanced almost from the start, July 18, 1936. Within a year they controlled almost half of Spain; within two years they had two-thirds and had cut government territory into two parts.

OBJECTIVE: Insurgents are trying to end war quickly by capturing Barcelona, main city of the government's northeastern section, and mopping up Catalonia. Government supporters say war will go on even if Barcelona falls.

House Votes on $5,000,000 'Stop-Gap' Relief Bill Today

PLAN TO END 'EARMARKING' UP IN SENATE

Committee Urges Higher Sums for Cities in Allocation of Sales Tax Revenue.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—House passage of the temporary $5,000,000 relief bill was anticipated today as the senate prepared for action on the first of several administration measures designed to end earmarking of state taxes and to pool most income in the state's general revenue fund.

The house finance committee was expected to send the relief bill to the floor without much delay. Leaders planned to suspend the rules and put the measure through in order that senate approval might be obtained and the bill be sent to the governor before the week-end.

Vote Due Today.

In the meantime the senate was to vote on the Maston bill—reported out of its taxation committee only a few hours after its introduction—which provides that with the exception of specific amounts earmarked for local governments all proceeds of the sales tax shall be paid into the general revenue fund.

The committee agreed to allow local governments $13,500,000 in 1939 and $12,000,000 in 1940. The bill originally called for $10,000,000 to local governments each year, but the amount was raised upon protests of cities.

Later another $1,500,000 was added for 1939 because of outstanding obligations which must be redeemed this year. These obligations are relief notes issued in 1938 anticipation of 1939 allocations.

The bill is one of a number which Governor Bricker has said would so "loosen up" state income that schools, poor relief and old age pensions could be financed from the present tax sources. He has advocated specific appropriations from the general fund to meet these requirements.

Three other measures intended to effect this policy also were introduced. They would divert all the state's share of the intangibles tax, all liquor revenue and all proceeds from the "use" tax into the general revenue fund.

Opera Star's Mate Shot Accidentally, Physicians Insist

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—His doctors insisted today that Jules E. Brulatour, millionaire husband of the opera and movie star, Hope Hampton, could have fired accidentally the pistol bullet which nipped his right ear, penetrated the scalp behind it and lodged in the nape of his neck.

District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey ordered investigation of several aspects of the shooting, which Brulatour said was accidental.

No longer insisting that he got the wound "falling downstairs," he and Miss Hampton greeted all comers to their suite of rooms at Lennox Hill hospital and explained that he "got it last Sunday night while cleaning his gun."

Dewey demanded to know why the shooting was not reported promptly to police, who got their first information on it yesterday afternoon; where the gun was; (Brulator didn't remember) whether he had a license for it; (he said his lawyers looked after those things) what happened to the bullet (the surgeon said he gave it to Miss Hampton for a souvenir).

Some idea of the work of a reference librarian may be glimpsed by just a sample of the things she was asked to find during the past year. Among them were: an article on verse-speaking choirs; when were center-guides for drawers first used in furniture? machines that have been invented but never used; hospitals in trailers; what is firefoam? history of the first Sorosis club in America, and the development of opera in Czechoslovakia. And seldom is the reference librarian "stumped."

OUTLINE 1939 ROAD PROGRAMS

Trustees of Five Townships Confer Today With Sword on Paving Plans.

Meeting with county commissioners and County Engineer Howard C. Sword today at the courthouse, trustee from five townships in southern Richland county outlined their 1939 road programs for the county officials who will use the information in setting up the county's road program for the year.

Trustees from each of the townships were called in separately for an hour's conference, with the Troy township officials heading the procession.

Others who were to be called in during the day were the Jefferson, Washington, Monroe and Perry township trustees. Others will be asked to confer later with the county officials, the county engineer said.

By obtaining the township road plans directly from the trustees, work of setting up a new construction and maintenance program in accordance with the funds available to the county for the year is speeded up, Sword pointed out.

Trustees are asked to submit their financial requests to the county and in turn are told how much help they may obtain during 1939, he said.

All of the trustees and clerks from the county's 18 townships met with the commissioners and engineer several weeks ago in a preliminary discussion of the year's road program.

CIO DISOWNS MARTIN IN FAVOR OF RIVAL FORCES IN CIO SPLIT

(By United Press)

DETROIT—A dual union struggle for the estimated 400,000 members of the United Automobile Workers of America was precipitated today by the disowning of suspended President Homer Martin, and the recognition of his union enemies by the Congress of Industrial Organization.

Martin charged that the CIO had split the union because he resisted the "dictatorship" of its president, John L. Lewis.

The announcement that the CIO no longer recognized Martin as head of the union was made in Washington yesterday by Sidney Hillman and Philip Murray, CIO vice presidents. They said he had "identified himself with dual unionism and arrogant defiance of a labor union."

They recognized an anti-Martin faction, which organized last week, with R. J. Thomas as president and backed by 15 members of the UAW executive board whom Martin had suspended. The members, constituting a majority, retaliated by suspending Martin and electing Thomas in his place.

Martin said that "it is important for the entire labor movement that the CIO adds to its record of fostering and promoting dual unionism for the purpose of splitting those unions which prefer democracy to a dictatorship."

"Mr. Lewis, will find, however, that American labor will not readily accept his dictates. As for myself, I shall make no attempt to stay in the CIO's good graces," he said.

Martin's following in the union will remain uncertain until March 4, when they will hold a convention here to elect new officers and change the constitution. Thomas' faction has called a convention at Cleveland March 20 for the same purpose.

REMAINS ON JOB

Wierman to Stay as Highway Engineer Until Feb. 1.

Boyd W. Wierman, dismissed last week as resident state highway engineer in Richland county, will remain in charge of the office here until Feb. 1, he had been informed today by Division Engineer Murray D. Shaffer.

Wierman was to have left his office today, turning it over to Joseph D. Dune, chief deputy in the county office.

Although Shaffer could not be reached today, it was believed that the extension of Wierman's period of service was to permit the formation of a new division, possibly including Richland and Crawford counties.

Meanwhile, all the county resident engineers jobs in the state have been abolished in a reorganization of the state highway department, Highway Director Robert S. Beightler announced at Columbus.

10 SURVIVORS TELL STORIES OF SEA PLUNGE

Conflicting Statements of Passengers, Crew Puzzle British Investigators.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK — Vague and at times contradictory statements today confronted investigators for the British government attempting to fix the cause for the crash of the Bermuda-bound airliner Cavalier Saurday in the Atlantic with a loss of three lives.

Although the last "S.O.S." calls from the falling ship indicated its four giant motors suddenly stalled because of ice conditions, the skipper, Capt. M. R. Alderson, insisted that was not the cause.

"The ice hazard was negligible," said Capt. Alderson, one of the 10 survivors rescued by the Esso Baytown, an oil tanker. "I have flown through much worse weather without mishap. Why all four motors failed, forcing the ship into mountainous seas, is a mystery to me."

Depositions taken from the 10 hardy survivors, now scattered to their homes and hotels, will be introduced at a formal inquiry to be held later in Canada or Bermuda. The present preliminary inquiry was being conducted by Capt. George C. Pirie, air attache at the British embassy in Washington.

Unable To Agree.

Meanwhile, the number of life preservers available for the passengers was a debated question. Captain Alderson said the survivors clung to nine lifebelts in the seas. Mrs. Edna Watson, one of the survivors, said there were six. A sailor on the rescue ship fixed the number at four.

There was also a dispute as to when the life preservers were handed out and whether the passengers were given sufficient warning to don their lifebelts.

Another unanswered question was that of why the ship was not landed while one or two of the motors were yet running instead of being set down on heavy seas in a "dead stick" landing, hazardous under most propitious circumstances.

Conflicting answers were given by survivors to the question of when the order was given for the fastening of safety belts and why it was ignored in some cases. J. Gordon Noakes, one of the three who died, was believed to have been standing in the plane when it struck the water. Suffering a badly gashed head, he was unconscious and sank to his death quickly.

Officially, the United States will not participate in the investigation although James Payton of the Civil Aeronautics authority will be present as an observer.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Nazis Guilty of Things They Charge to Jews But Germans in U. S. Balk

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—If you were to substitute the terms "international Nazi" for "international Jew" and "world nazidom" for "world Jewry" in many of the orations and writings which have come out of Germany these last few days and examine the attitude of the Nazi nation it would be clearly seen that the Nazi campaign closely follows the lines of the plot which the Nazis themselves attribute to the Jews.

There occurs in this material the same arrogant assumption of superiority and the same contempt for the rights and qualities of other peoples that the Nazis constantly impute to the Jews and denounce as a menace and insult. They hold themselves to be God's chosen people, with a private god of their own who detests all other peoples and rewards all acts which serve world Nazidom at the expense of the infidels of whatever race or nation.

* * *

That is the substance of one of their complaints against the Jews, and, having brooded on the case, they apparently were impressed by the merits of such a conspiracy if pressed with ruthless energy in their own interest. The most aggressive Nazi thought on the subject of religion goes so far as to claim that a Nazi is himself divine, because the Nazi god is the state.

By this process every faithful Nazi becomes a part of that god.

* * *

The International Nazi is permitted to take citizenship in this and other countries which will permit him to do so, but he is expected to remain faithful to Hitler and exhorted to create unrest among Americans of German blood, even as the Jews are accused of fomenting class warfare.

"Nation and state are not identical," says an item in a collection of Nazi papers on this subject contained in a book called "The German Reich and Americans of German Origin," published by the Oxford Press. "We sometimes have believed that only those belong to the Reich who live within the borders of the Reich, within the German state. We have assumed that nation and state were identical. What would become of those who have gone to foreign countries in former years because of economic necessity and lust for adventure? They are, nationally speaking, our brothers, our racial comrades, even if they possess American citizenship. Folkdom is much greater than citizenship in a country. Therefore, we rightly define as Germans all those of German descent and of German blood who live abroad."

* * *

The material is old and familiar, but the book serves as a handy collection. The reflection on the American patriotism of immigrants and the descendants of immigrants is characteristic of the Nazi attitude on the subject, since it was decided that by Nazifying all emigrants and their descendants everywhere the Hitler state would increase its numbers by millions and establish powerful outposts abroad.

"And thus I come to the main accusation raised against the foreign organization and its party comrades abroad," said E. W. Bohle, the leader of the Nazi foreign organization, in a speech to the party congress at Nuremberg in 1935—"That we are causing unrest in the German colonies and destroying their unity. If fight means unrest, then we admit that we created unrest. We fought to win the Germans abroad."

Americans of German blood and descent make their own answer to this attitude toward their citizenship and American patriotism. There has been violent disagreement in cultural organizations here over the efforts of the Nazi missionaries to make international Nazis of American citizens, and the insulting program has made little progress, thanks to the resentment of those whom it intended to win to treacherous activity.

* * *

Still, examination of the Nazi declarations on the subject shows that the intention is to persuade decent American citizens, most of them natives and many ex-soldiers who fought against the Kaiser, to become international Nazis and betray their country in the manner which the Nazi propaganda constantly charges against the Americans of Jewish faith or blood.

All Nazi writings on the subject are alive with reminders that the Nazi is the superior of all other men and that the service of Nazidom justifies any betrayal of oath or trust, a common Nazi charge against the figure described as the "international Jew."

Their documents hold that such conduct is permissible, even holy, and sure to be rewarded by the Nazi god in the Nazi heaven. It seems a serious possibility that some genius of the Reich, on examining the Nazi propaganda against the so-called "international Jews" went to Hitler saying, "Boss, this is too good to waste. It is a perfect plan. Let us use it ourselves."

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Three movie starlets gave a party the other day to announce their engagements—respectively to an assistant director, a little-known actor, and a non-professional.

The average fan wouldn't know the names of any of the starlets, nor of their fiances. And it struck me as a perfect example of the romantic workings of the Hollywood caste system, which is predicated on fame rather than family, on earnings rather than social background.

And ridiculous and unnatural as the system is, strict adherence to it is still Hollywood's best happy-marriage insurance.

Three recent marital flops appear—from the outside at least—to have sprung from defiance of the system. Things looked rosy when Jackie Coogan and Betty Grable wed. Jackie was no longer in the big chips, but didn't he have all that money from his boyhood stardom? Well, he's trying to find out in court about that now. Meanwhile, he's making peanuts if that, and Betty's making a regular salary, about $700 a week, and so—they've separated.

Bette Davis was practically a star when she married Harmon O. Nelson, jr., her childhood sweetheart. "Ham" was doing all right with his orchestra, but he gave it up to try business in Hollywood. Bette's fame grew and grew. Sequel, from that or other causes: divorce.

* * *

ANN SHERIDAN and Edward Norris were both minor numbers in the studios when they married. But the dice threw larger portions of fame to Ann, lesser ones to Eddie. Sequel, from that or other causes: divorce.

Feminine stars can keep caste when they marry producers or directors or equally prominent actors. (Myrna Loy-Arthur Hornblow, Virginia Bruce-J. Walter Ruben, Joan Blondell-Dick Powell.) And because such marriages don't have professional jealousies to buck, they generally last longer.

The Leonard Penns (Gladys George) get along all right, despite the fact that the wife gets the big billing in the family—but that's unusual. The Gene Raymonds (Jeanette MacDonald) are up against a similar situation, and apparently making it behave.

* * *

NEXT to producers and directors, the best bets matrimonially for the glamour gals are nonpros, prominent in their own fields. (Claudette Colbert-Dr. Joel Pressman, Irene Dunne-Dr. Francis Griffin). But movie agents are all right, too (Shirley Ross-Ken Dolan,) and famous makeup men (Gloria Dickson-Perc Westmore,) and wealthy oil men (June Knight-Arthur A. Cameron) and very successful writers (Luise Rainer-Clifford Odets).

If you think that Hollywood's caste system puts romance on a cash basis, think twice—because Hollywood isn't alone in that.

Miss Mary Lou Hehman, David T. Marantette Will Marry Feb. 18 In Open Church Service at St. Peter's.

SMALL cards designed to look like cathedrals were distributed for place cards yesterday at the 1 o'clock luncheon served to 15 guests by Mrs. Emmett Casey in the Chinese room of the Mansfield-Leland hotel. The small doors could be swung open, and revealed a bridal pair and the wedding date and place of the marriage of Miss Mary Lou Hehman and David T. Marantette, Detroit.

Yesterday Mrs. Casey had the table decorated with a centerpiece made of a miniature bride and groom, candles were arranged cathedral style along the table, and bowls of spring flowers set at either end of the long table.

Bridge was played at three tables, and Miss Hehman, Mrs. Marion D. Ward and Mrs. William Seery, East Orange, N. J., were the prize winners. The bride-to-be was presented with a corsage by her hostess, and by Mrs. Weber.

Informally Speaking...

By MARIANNE

TWO Mansfielders are vacationing in the "Paris of the Americas" this week. . . . Robert Shaeffer and Charles Feinberg arrived in Havana, Cuba, early this week by clipper ship. They flew down from the International Pan American airport at Miami, and after several days of sightseeing and shopping in Havana, they will return to Florida again, by flying boat.

* * *

These are busy days for Margaret Hall—Mansfield senior at Wooster college . . . for she's been chosen to plan dance routines for a chorus of 32 students in the annual Gum Shoe Hop. The title of this musical comedy is "Number, Please," written by several Wooster students. This comedy will be the sixth annual production of its type and depicts life on the campus of a large university . . . where the students are designated by numbers instead of names!

* * *

MANSFIELD club women will be interested to learn that Aileen (Mrs. W. E.) Benninghoff received a personal letter from Norma Shearer not so very long ago. Aileen, you recall, has given book reviews before Mansfield audiences twice this winter, and will appear again Feb. 15. . . . She is brought here by the Women's association of the First Congregational church. When Miss Shearer first was offered the part of Scarlett O'Hara in the movie production of "Gone With the Wind," Aileen sent her her own ideas on the portrayal. . . . When Miss Shearer declined the part, (now assigned to English Virginia Leigh) Mrs. Benninghoff received a letter from Norma. . . . Unusual, because this actress seldom writes personal letters.

Excerpts from the letter read: "Dear Mrs. Benninghoff—Thank you for your intelligent discussion of Scarlett O'Hara and her motive. I agree and sympathize with your views. It is because I loved her and understood her that I wanted to play her part." And the note concluded with: "I was troubled too by traits in her character which I thought might be unpleasant to portray on the screen, such as her disrespect for the death of her husband and her neglect and indifference to her child. With sincere appreciation and good wishes, Norma Shearer."

* * *

The parade of travelers still continues—and Mansfield seems more barren with every passing day. Darrel and Margaret Iden are in New York City this week—on a business and pleasure trip. . . . R. H. King is in Cleveland combining business and pleasure for a few days.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. W. H. BOWIE left early yesterday for an extended motor trip south. They are driving down and plan to stop off at Miami and Key West. Then they will take the boat to Cuba for awhile—and won't be back to Mansfield until the latter part of April or the first of May. . . . There seems to be some question about who went where. . . . Anyway it's Wayne Hursh who's touring Florida this week with Ralph Constance . . . not William Hursh, as we reported Monday.

* * *

Hazel Underwood will be leaving on that world cruise from San Pedro, Cal., one of these days too. . . . She left Mansfield today. . . . On her way out to the West Coast she plans to stop off at the Grand Canyon for a look around . . . then on to catch a tramp steamer and sail around the globe.

* * *

VIVIAN MILLER was no little surprised when she opened her bridge prize at the Chi Sigma pledge party last evening at the Mansfield-Leland hotel—because it wasn't really a prize at all—but a gift from Irene (Aaron) Heaton. The gift was a stale, month-old doughnut all done up in cotton, a fancy white box, tissue paper and ribbon! It was the result of a prank of Vivian's. . . . One day when Irene was complaining of hunger, Vivian gave her the stale doughnut . . . and so, not to be outdone, Irene gave it back to her . . . in still a more petrified stage.

STYLE QUERY: Could it be the brunet wig which Joan Bennett wears so becomingly in her recent picture, "Trade Winds," that is causing so many girls to let down their up-swept hair-do's and revert back to the more flattering long bob again?

Polka Dots Add Enchantment

A rain of yellow polka dots falls on the ribbed black ground of the cravat silk that makes this pirate hat-and-bag ensemble. A simple bow trims the high crowned hat and another is knotted at the top of the big bag, slung like a kerchief over the arm.

Dessert was served at nine tables, which were lighted with gold tapers in black holders, after the pledging services. The group then played bridge, and prizes were awarded to Mrs. Ivan Bettiker and Miss Mary Butler.

Mrs. Bettiker is a former member of the sorority who is now visiting here from Charleston, W. Va. Miss Wilma Ziegler resumed her active membership at last night's meeting too.

Vocational Training Valuable

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Some weeks ago, I had luncheon with two women, authors of the book "We Are Forty and We Did Get Jobs." As this book has been referred to before, in this column, it's enough to remind you again that the authors said personality, pep and interest in one's job are better means of landing a job than glamour.

They also went on to say that the average business and professional men in hiring women are more interested in the facts of business than in the facts of life. More important still, if you're looking for a job, know as much about it as the employer, when you present yourself.

In and out of season, I've tried to din into the heads of readers of this column not to neglect taking a course of Vocational Training, which your Uncle Sam provides for you gratuitously. Whether you're a poor little rich girl, or an ambitious little poor girl, you can't make a mistake by enrolling in a course of Vocational Training.

As befits the nation's capital, Washington, D. C., opened its doors to the newest and most up-to-date Vocational Training school the other day. One hundred and fifty girls of junior and senior high school age went to work on courses to fit them for self-supporting careers or to make some man happy when they marry.

So the other day, your Uncle Sam opened the Dennison Vocational Training school, erected at a cost of $336,000 at 13th and Allison street, northwest, Washington, D. C. It contains everything from a completely-equipped beauty shop to a modern five-room apartment for home-making practice purposes.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

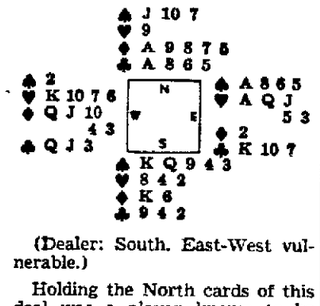
By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

WATCH THE TRICKSTER

Incorrigible psychic bidders can sometimes be made to pay heavily for their fancy didoes if opposed by players who keep a canny watch on them.

Sound use of the natural meanings of bids and doubles will usually reveal the true situation to the opponents and may leave the psychic bidder's partner the only one fooled.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

Holding the North cards of this deal was a player known to be plagued by too much imagination. After his partner's pass, he visualized the opponents having a sure heart game, so decided to forestall it with an opening psychic bid of 1-Heart. East doubled, South redoubled and West passed.

North couldn't stand that redouble, so bid 2-Diamonds. East bid 2-Spades, South doubled and West made the whole situation clear to his partner with 2-No trump. This showed hearts and diamonds amply stopped and also probably a bit of something in clubs, a perfect picture of his holding.

News about his partner's heart stoppers was all East needed to know to see that a heart game should be in the cards for his side, so he leaped to 4-Hearts without further ado. Now South thought he saw a winning defense. A lead of his diamond K, then another to the A indicated by his partner's bidding, followed by a diamond ruff, would leave him where he needed only a spade trick to set the contract. So he doubled.

The post-mortem on this deal was not pleasant to hear, after East made an overtrick, losing only one trick in each minor.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, Jan. 26

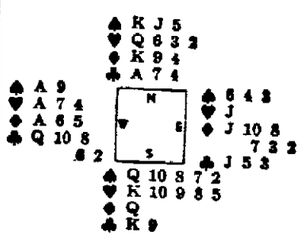
WHILE THIS may be a day of fresh opportunities and certain alluring new proposals, yet it may be difficult to gain much headway. Obstacles of frustrating circumstances may arise, although there is hope that superiors, employers or those in authority may offer friendly endorsement or more substantial co-operation. The impediment might possibly be in relation to the health or to that of a family connection.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to find themselves launched in a year of new and important openings for success and advancement, with employers and others ready to co-operate At the same time an obstacle in the way of illness of self or family may prove detrimental and disheartening. However, firm ground may be gained on these new foundations by steady application, hope and patience in bridging over temporary adverse situations until more auspicious times.

A child born on this day will be capable, unusually talented and ambitious but may have to fight its way through obstacles and handicaps, possibly because of a not too robust physical constitution. It will have much strength of character, persistency and fortitude to aid its winning out.

To remove ink from the fingers moisten the finger, rub the head of an ordinary kitchen match on it and the ink spot will soon disappear.

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

If the first three tricks against South's 4-Heart contract are the spade A, spade 9 to the K and hear 2 to the J, K and A, why should West next lay down his diamond A?

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"His chauffeur drove him down to Jersey," she said, and I knew that the pronoun again referred to Philip Veritzen. "I know because he brought him up to the suite with him after I telephoned him that I had received a letter from you."

"What was his reaction, or rather, what did he say?" I asked next, and then added a hasty corolary. "Be careful about names."

"I understand," she returned. "I'll be careful. Anyway, I'm telephoning from my friend's, as you know. There isn't a chance in a million of anyone's understanding the conversation. As for his reaction, it was surprisingly calm. But, then, of course, your letter was so eminently plausible, it would have convinced the most doubtful person in the world, and of course, he very nearly fits in that category.

"He was a bit rambunctious over the telephone when I told him I had a letter from you," she went on. 'He evidently smelled a mouse or two, especially because I told him that I did not wish to read it to him over the telephone. But when he came over to the hotel, which he did in record time, and I had given him your letter to read, he calmed down perceptibly. But for several minutes after he had read it—he went through it twice—he sat looking out of the window as if he were debating what to do. Then he turned to me abruptly.

"'This doesn't say when they will be back'," he said, and there was distinct accusation in his voice. He evidently held me responsible for your vagueness.

"'No,' I answered, 'except that she says "shortly." I should think we might expect her any day.'

"'I'm going down there at once,' he said abruptly. 'Will you telephone her that I'm coming, please?'"

I gave a little gasp at that, and heard an answering little chuckle from the nurse.

"You get it, I see," she said. "He was setting a trap for me, in order to make himself sure that your letter was authentic. But I was ready for him.

"'Why! how can I do that?' I asked. 'She hasn't given any telephone number in her letter, and she says this family they're visiting don't have any modern improvements in their home.'"

"I can tell you I held my breath for a second after that," Miss Whitlock went on. "Then he stood up, with your letter in his hand

"'Do you need this letter for anything?' he asked. 'If you do, please copy it at once, for I'm taking it with me.'

"'No, I don't need it,' I returned. "I've already jotted down the address, so I can send her a wire if any emergency arises, and that's all I'll need.'

"'You'll not need that,' he told me gruffly. 'Otto is driving me down there at once. I shall bring them back with me. If my daughter-in-law is so much better, it is time she came home. But I am very glad she has had this little rest.'

"The last words sounded as if they hurt him," the nurse concluded with a little chuckle. "He went away right after that, taking your letter with him, and I waited only until I was sure he was out of the hotel before dashing over here to telephone you. What do you want me to do now?"

"Nothing, except stay in the hotel until we arrive," I told her. "He started, how long ago?"

"Fifteen minutes before I came over here," she said.

"We can call it a half hour," I calculated. "He has Otto drive like the traditional bat from Hades, so I can estimate the time it will take him to get down there, find out that we ostensibly have just left, and get back to the hotel. I'll check up train schedules at once, so as to make the time of our return plausible. Remember we're taking a taxi from the terminal of the trains from that South Jersey town. I cannot tell you just when we'll be there. Watch for our arrival any time after noon, and if he is there when we arrive, watch me carefully for cues."

Peanut Butter Useful

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

PEANUT BUTTER—that good old standby—is so widely used simply as a sandwich spread that its food value has been overlooked, and its wide application in cooking neglected. Since peanut butter is so rich in iron, phosphorus and oil it should have a bigger place in the kitchen. And when the peanut butter is used with milk the necessary calcium is added The product is inexpensive too, which makes it an added attraction. Some interesting recipes have been worked out and tested and now we pass them on to you, dear reader, in the hope that you will try some of them soon. If you like them, we'll have another equally good batch to offer.

Plantation Milk Shake will delight the youngsters and the adult who needs feeding up Quarter cup peanut butter, 3 tablespoons sugar, dash of salt, 2 cups milk and ¼ teaspoon vanilla will make two tall glasses. Place peanut butter, sugar and salt in a bowl, add ¼ cup of the milk, whip with rotary beater or electric mixer till smooth. Add remaining milk gradually, beat until smooth. Add vanilla. Chill in covered jar in refrigerator until ready to use. When serving, top each glass with a dash of nutmeg.

Peanut Butter Shortbread is a tasty dish and the family will be glad you served it. It takes 1½ cups sifted pastry flour, ½ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup peanut butter, ½ cup butter, chilled and 2 tablespoons light corn syrup.

Sift flour once, measure, add sugar and salt, and sift again. Cut in peanut butter, and butter with pastry blender or two knives until the mixture looks like coarse meal. Add corn syrup, mix thoroughly. Shape in 1½ inch rolls. Cut into 1½ inch slices. Bake in greased sheets in 325F. over 20 minutes or until light brown. Makes 50. This mixture can be stored in refrigerator by wrapping rolls tightly in waxed paper and slicing and baking as needed.

Peanut Butter Cocoanut Slices make a nice addition to the cookie jar. Half cup sifted cake flour, 1¼ teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup butter, ½ cup peanut butter, one cup sugar, 2 well beaten eggs, ⅔ cup shredded cocoanut and ½ teaspoon vanilla will yield 36 sticks. Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and then sift again. Cream butter, add peanut butter, blend thoroughly. Add sugar to eggs, beat with rotary beater until light and lemon colored. Add to peanut mixture, blend. Add flour and beat until thoroughly blended. Add cocoanut and vanilla Blend. Bake in paper lined greased pan 7x12 inches in 350 F oven for 45 minutes Turn out on rack. Remove paper immediately. Cool and cut in 2x1 inch strips.

My Neighbor Says:

It is important to get rose plants into the ground as early as possible in the spring. Wise amateurs will try to choose varieties which are comparatively free from black spot and mildew. Deep planting is not necessary, but the knob above the roots, showing where the graft was made, should be an inch under the surface. The fact has been learned in recent years that mounding soil around the newly set plants almost to the top will do much to give them a good start.

When cooking cauliflower place it in a wire frying basket. It can then be lifted without being broken. Do not cover as covering may turn the cauliflower dark.

Chrysanthemums are among the few perennials which need to be divided every spring. If the work is done early each small division will make a blooming plant by autumn, which is the normal blooming time of chrysanthemums. When this work is neglected for a number of consecutive seasons chrysanthemums are likely to run out.

Something New Under the Sun

Designed by that sartorially gay young American, Gladys Parker, this cruise coat, which she has aptly named "Splash," is as endlessly practical as it is chic. Fashioned of transparent silk which has been processed by what is known as koroseal to make it waterproof, the coat fastens with big pearl buttons. Not only the ideal wrap to slip on for a starlight deck stroll when cruising, it also would serve a variety of other occasions for southern resort wear.

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

The last of our holiday gang left yesterday. Dennis sailed back to England, after making all sorts of promises to return soon. His sister wanted him to return with her to California, but he is a studious lad and wanted to get back to Oxford. He is returning in the summer because he wants to visit the two World's Fairs, And, of course, while he is on the west coast he will visit Hollywood.

Don was going to return to England to make two more pictures, but the studio here has taken up its option, for Don's last picture was such a success. So he probably won't go to England until next autumn, if then. Phylys doesn't mind, for she would rather remain in California. Then, too, if she doesn't go home, her father and mother will most likely come over with Dennis

I'm glad that Phylys is going to remain on the coast, for I know that she'll be a big help to Pam. She'll bring in all the visiting swells to Pam's shop, and that will do Pam a great deal of good. Pam is awfully keen about the job and Madame is delighted. She always thought a great deal of Pam's business capacities, and now that she's older and more sensible and steady, she is so much the better. I have an idea that she'll put over the Beverly Hills shop in a big way. After all, mother is there with the children, and their nurse is so devoted and just adores them. So Pam can be away from home with a clear conscience.

I'm so grateful to Madame for suggesting the whole thing. My parents are pleased, too, for they had an idea that Pam was becoming the least bit bored and therefore discontented. Mother has a job, too. She is going to photograph models for a catalogue and also for ads! So now the whole family is on the job. Mother is such an artist and such a fine photographer that I know she will do a marvelous job Bill says that she is one of the best he has ever known.

Going on a cruise means smart togs for shore excursions. Here's an attractive coat made of navy and white linen. There's binding of the navy down the front, around the colar and cuffs and at the pockets. It has a concealed closing. The back has a few shaped tucks to define the waist.

Hints On Tipping Those Who Serve In Public Places

By JOAN DURHAM,
(C) Feature Service Writer.

A VISITOR from Mars might easily get the impression that the Great American Gesture is palms up.

For, despite efforts of many restaurant chains, airlines and others to abolish it, tipping seems to be increasing in this country.

To be sure, present-day tips aren't so big as they used to be. But they're spread over a wider base to include more people and more services

The American who spends some time in even average-size city tips about like this.

Waiters and waitresses—10 per cent of the bill on the average—not less than ten cents where tablecloths are used The 10 per cent is scaled up to 20 in the better hotel dining rooms and more elaborate restaurants

Hat-check girls—Ten or fifteen cents usually is enough although girls in high-priced clubs scoff at anything less than a quarter.

Porters—Fifteen cents is about the minimum for a redcap. Pullman porters get from 25 to 50 cents for overnight tips. Hotel porters who handle heavy luggage usually get a quarter to fifty cents. Bellhops get from fifteen cents to a quarter for showing you to your room. If they make another trip for cigarets, ice or a newspaper they expect at least a dime more.

Taxi drivers—They are notoriously dependent on tips. A five-cent tip, isn't received very gratefully, although it will do for a haul under fifty cents Up ot seventy-five cents, the tip is a dime. Over that it may be between 10 to 15 per cent.

Even beauty parlor operators have come to consider the tip as part of their livelihood. Most of them get 10 cents for a bill that runs up to 75 cents, 15 to 20 cents for bills that hug the dollar line. When milady gets a permanent she is expected to fork over an additional 10 per cent of the bill.

Delivery boys from grocery stores, corner drug stores, the cleaner's and telegraph agencies appreciate a nickel or a dime.

Cider sauce makes something just a little different to serve with pancakes or waffles. Boil one cup of sugar and half a cup of cider for four minutes. Serve either warm or cold.

The latest craze in bracelets to hit the west coast is one made of gaily enameled tropical fish.

Character, Beauty Go Together

By MME. QUI VIVE

They say that personality isn't what you are, but what you make others think you are. Certainly, personality is a force greater than appearance. Women who have it to a charming degree can get by if locks are scrambled and clothes duddy. It is the belief of this preacher of pulchritude—humbly offered of course — that others know us for what we are; we don't fool anybody. Character is revealed in a shrug of the shoulder, the quick exclamation, in a gesture or a pose. People aren't dumb. They use their eyes and their ears, come to conclusions that usually are fair.

* * *

Certainly, the sweet ones of this world get more out of life than the howlers, complainers and meanies. They side-step unpleasant subjects and arguments. They realize that conflict of human wills is more wearing than hard labor, that it is destructive and weakening; that it places ugly marks upon human faces.

The wise woman knows that to be charming and well-mannered means more in the long run than exploiting one's opinions. She saves herself a lot of bother and trouble. Most family quarrels are all about nothing The causes would evaporate if not brought into the open. More women grow old and ugly because of domestic strife than for any other reason.

* * *

The pleasant, calm, well-balanced woman not only regulates her own existence so that it is fairly free of discord but she carries the element of tranquility into the lives of others. She oils the wheels of existence. She dispels clouds with a gay word. When others are ready to battle she offers harmless ridicule and peace comés.

Joe Louis Heavy Favorite In Heavyweight Title Battle

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK—(AP)—As usual, the odds in favor of Joe Louis retaining his heavyweight championship grow steadily longer as the hour nears for the big colored boy to meet John Henry Lewis in 15 rounds tonight at Madison Square Garden.

A few days ago it looked like the widespread admiration for the challenger's boxing skill would cut the odds down to a respectable 1 to 4 by fight time, but nothing came of it. The betting commissioners, anxious to get some action, have boosted the figures up to 1 to 7, and there is reason to believe they will be even more liberal by tonight.

The fact is that few are anxious to wager against Joe Louis at any odds, hence the men who make their living by guessing right on sports events are forced to offer outlandish inducements in order to do any business when the Bomber appears. It will pain them to do it, but they probably will be betting $10 against each $1 of Lewis money by the time the two blacks climb through the ropes.

By coincidence, that is substantially the price they offered that Louis would lick Max Schmeling in their first meeting in 1936. When the German battered Joe into dazed submission the bookies bled from every pore. If it happened to them once it could happen again, for boxing is the most uncertain game of them all.

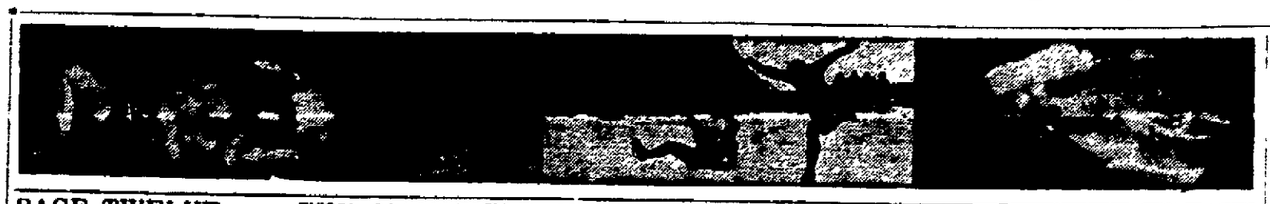
Louis, who has been called the greatest fighter of history since his shattering one-round knockout of Schmeling in their second fight last summer, will go into tonight's engagement with every advantage, except that of experience. He will pack a "difference" of close to 20 pounds in weight and he punches with a shocking force that John Henry never had. Further, he is at the peak of his career, while John Henry passed his two or three years ago and has lost some of the dazzling speed that made him king of the light-heavies.

Still, it is silly to say that a fighter as good as Lewis hasn't a chance of sneaking a victory over any man, and the odds are crazy insofar as they reflect the possibilities in tonight's bout.

Lewis is an confident as Schmeling was up at Speculator last summer. He has on his side a desperate determination to outpoint Louis for 15 rounds, and he still has his cool fighting head and all his defensive skill.

Considering that it is the first heavyweight title fight between colored men ever held in this country, the event promises to draw a fine house. Promoter Mike Jacobs looks for 17,000 customers and $100,000 in the till.

Bellevue Drops Tygers' Title Stock With 37-32 Victory



Madison Hangs Up 8th Win

Rams Halt Bellville by 23 to 12 Count.

THE fast-stepping Rams of Mansfield Madison registered their eighth Richland county league triumph and increased their lead in the championship race to two and a half games by walloping Bellville high, 23 to 12, on the Madison planks last night.

Coach Al Fendrick's charges encountered trouble from the fighting Bluejays, but clicked at the right moments to topple the invaders and add to their advantage over the second-place Butler Bulldogs in the nip-and-tuck title chase.

The Hodge-coached Bellville quintet battled desperately to overtake the Rams in the final period, but lacked the scoring punch to turn the trick.

With Joe Miller sparking the fast-breaking attack, the Rams broke loose with an early barrage of baskets to jump into a lead they protected to the finish line.

Madison grabbed a 6 to 3 advantage in the opening stanza, increased it to a 15 to 4 margin at the intermission, and went into the final frame leading 21 to 8.

Miller shared individual honors with Dill of Bellville with six points apiece. Dill was the only invader to solve the Madison defense for more than one goal. Bill Wilkins contributed five points to the Madison attack.

The Madison seconds made a clean sweep of the card by stopping the Bellville reserves, 13 to 6, in the prelim.

Redmen Rally In Final Period to Avenge Tourney Defeat In Spectacular Tussle on Mansfield Court.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

MANSFIELD HIGH SCHOOL basketball stock took a decided dip in the championship market last night.

Defending champions of the district, Russ Murphy's Tygers suffered their first defeat in competition with a sectional rival last night when they bowed to the fleet-footed crew of basketballers from Bellevue by a 37 to 32 count on the Mansfield planks before a half-filled gym.

It was a very satisfactory ending to the most exciting ball game staged at the Tyger lair this season for the visitors, for whom the victory spelled revenge for the whipping administered by the Men of Murphy in the district elimination last season.

But the battered Tygers will have little time to brood over the setback. Saturday night another team from the other end of the district comes to Mansfield, and the Tygers are no cinches to soothe the sting of last night's tanning with a victory.

Come Here Saturday.

Sandusky will be Saturday night's foe, and the Blue Streaks have always been tough for the Tygers. This season the Streaks are particularly dangerous, judging from their record.

However, Murphy doubts whether the Sanduskians can be any tougher than Bellevue. The Redmen showed the Tygers as much basketball last night as any foe they have tackled this campaign.

Mansfield held its own in fine shape for three periods, but it was unable to keep pace with the Redmen in the final quarter. The greater stamina of the visitors told the tale in the exciting fourth frame.

It has been several winters since Mansfield cage followers witnessed a more thrilling game than these two well-matched quintets staged last night. The score was tied thrice and the lead changed hands eight times before the Redmen built up their winning margin.

The first period ended with Mansfield in front by a 11 to 8 count. In the next quarter, Bellevue went into an early lead, but the Tygers came back on points contributed by Jack Dugger to hold an 18 to 17 edge at the intermission.

The third quarter developed into a wild nip-and-tuck battle, with the lead shifting with virtually every basket. Behind four points with two minutes to go, Belevue knotted the count 25-all on Don Leininger's two baskets.

Less than a minute elapsed in the final period when Jim Flennet parted the netting with a short shot to break the tie and give Bellevue a lead it never relinquished.

The Tygers remained within striking distance of the lead until the final two minutes, then Bellevue pulled away to cinch its 10th victory in 12 games.

Probably the person who had more to do with the Bellevue victory than any other was Leininger, held to one bucket in the first half. In the last 10 minutes of play, he personally accounted for nine of the 16 Redmen points to make the victory a certainty.

Belevue's ability to sink the leather from the foul line was also an important factor, converting seven of 10 shots. These foul shots were by no means the deciding factor, though, as the visitors outscored Mansfield from the field, 15 to 11.

Flenner Leads Scoring.

Flenner led the Bellevue scoring with 12 points, but Leininger was right behind with 11. Tommy Scott and Dugger were high for the Tygers with nine points apiece, the former being particularly effective from the corner. Jake Lyons contributed four baskets, two coming on difficult one-handed shots and the others on throws from near mid-court.

Although held scoreless in the third period, the Mansfield reserves trimmed the Bellevue seconds, 21 to 18, in the preliminary game. A free throw by Burton and a basket by Harmon broke an 18-all tie late in the game to The junior Tygers, led by Harmony and Beer, who scored nine points ahead, held a 17 to 7 lead at the half.

Need Victory To Nail Title

Billiards Face Sohioans Thursday Night.

The first half championship of the Senior A league may be decided at the Friendly House Thursday night when the undefeated Rex Billiards collide with the Blue Goose Sohioans in the final game at 8:45.

The Billiards cinched a share of the crown last week when they toppled Raemelton Farm in an exciting tussle, but need a win Thursday to take the title outright.

If the Sohioans, who are in second place, win Thursday and again next week in the final game, and the Billiards lose their next two tilts, the first half race will end in a tie.

However, the Billiards are favored to wrap up the gonfalon Thursday as they defeated the Blue Goose entry in their first meeting this season.

The Raemelton Farm and Musille Cigar quintets meet in the first game Thursday at 6:45 p. m., and Augustine's Canfield Oils and Miller's Dairys collide in the middle tilt.

Crestline Takes Over Cardington

CRESTLINE—Although never trailing, Crestline high school cagers were given a stiff battle by Cardington by three periods, but won by a 32 to 21 count here last night.

Crestline grabbed an 8 to 6 lead in the first period, led 10 to 8 at the half and 20 to 11 at the end of the third quarter. The visitors tied the score 14-all at one time in the third period.

Emmer led Crestline with 10 points, while Gibbons was high for Cardington with nine.

In a rough and tumble preliminary game, the Crestline reserves defeated Cardington, 22 to 10, for their 18th victory of the season.

Ellison Collects 30 Points As Plymouth Rips Greenwich

Tigers Regain First Place In Twin-Valley League With One-Sided 52 to 25 Triumph.

PLYMOUTH—Leroy Ellison put on a one-man show for followers of the Plymouth Tigers last night when he led his teammates to a decisive 52 to 25 rout over Greenwich on the home hardwood.

Ellison, one of the leading scorers in this section, parted the strings for 30 points as the Tigers broke a two-game losing streak and regained the lead in the Twin-Valley league.

The center's total for the evening included 13 baskets and four free throws, which provided enough points to beat the Greenies.

There was very little question about the outcome of the game after the first half. The Tigers grabbed an 8 to 2 lead in the opening period, and extended their advantage to 25 to 9 at the half.

Play moved into the fourth quarter with Coach Don Dunham's high schoolers holding a 41 to 17 lead.

The preliminary game was taken by Plymouth by a 21 to 12 count.

Christians Knocked Out Of Deadlock

Baptists Hold Lead Alone in Class B League.

Park Avenue Baptists occupied first place in the Class B Church league alone today.

Forced to the very limit, the Baptists turned back the First Lutherans, 24 to 23, while First Christian was knocked out of a tie by St. John Evangelical.

The game between Christian and St. John ended in a 24 to 24 tie, and, in the three-minute overtime, the latter club tallied eight points while holding its foe to a foul shot to win 32 to 25.

Moorhead was the outstanding star of the game as he scored 15 points for First Christian. Columbus tallied 10 for the winners.

The Baptists were forced to stage a comeback in the last period to defeat the Lutherans. The Lutherans led 6 to 1 at the end of the first period, but the Baptists went ahead 12 to 11 at the intermission. Lutheran regained the lead in the third period, only to fall victim to the fourth-quarter rally. Condon led the Baptists with 11 points.

Dixon tallied 18 points as he led South Main to a 32 to 18 triumph over Central M. E., and Collins contributed 13 to First Presbyterian's 22 to 14 victory over First M. E.

Louis: 'Knockout' Lewis: 'Decision'

NEW YORK—(INS)—Here are the pre-battle statements of the two principals in tonight's fight:

By Joe Louis:

"John Henry Lewis will be just another fighter to me tonight. I will win just as soon as I can. It all depends on whether John Henry makes a fight of it. If he runs or won't open up it may take a little longer than the three rounds I figure on. If he stands up to me I don't think it will go further than that."

* * *

By John Henry Lewis:

"I know I am a better boxer than Louis and faster on my feet. I've had more experience. I am not going to gamble on a knockout unless the chance is too good to miss but I expect to be there at the end of the fifteen rounds to accept the decision. If it goes that far I am sure to outpoint him. I am not afraid of him but of course I respect his punching ability."

DEFENSE LINES TIGHTEN AFTER EARLY RETREAT

Reports London, Amsterdam Markets Slipping Turn Eyes Toward Europe.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Stock market defense lines held fast today after an early retreat and some shares showed an inclination to rally.

Heaviest losers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Anaconda Copper, Goodyear Tire, Chrysler, Westinghouse Electric, International Nickel, J. I. Case, and Phelps Dodge.

Corporate bonds also pointed downward but most commodities remained in a narrow range.

Reports London and Amsterdam markets were slipping kept Wall Street attention turned toward Europe.

In retrospect, January business gains were judged in some financial quarters rather disappointing for those who had expected a vigorous new year upswing.

The "Iron Age" said the failure of the steel industry to attain a pace expected by the more optimistic could be attributed chiefly to "caution of private enterprise in the face of continued uncertainties at home and abroad."

DAUGHTER OF A. F. OF L. CHIEF TAKES TO LECTURE PLATFORM

(By Associated Press)

COSHOCTON—Abandoning her career as a dramatics coach because of poor eyesight, Miss Clara Green has found new success on the lecture platform entertaining audiences with "inside" stories of the personality of her famous father, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Miss Green, one of six children of the labor leader, already has attracted considerable attention as a speaker throughout Ohio and nearby states.

General economic problems, with emphasis on labor, usually provide topics for her addresses but she commands most interest when she reveals intimate glimpses of her father and his tilts with John L. Lewis, chief of the Congress of Industrial Organization, the A. F. L.'s arch-rival.

A resident of Coshocton all her life, Miss Green was graduated from Coshocton high school and later attended Denison university at Granville and Ohio university at Athens.

Her early interest in the stage led her to accept a position as high school dramatics instructor, but she resigned because of sight trouble. Since entering the lecture field her eye difficulties have been corrected, however.

Miss Green pictures her father as a calm and unworried family man despite his bitter battles as a labor organizer.

"When rival union organizations formed the CIO I was worried and alarmed," she said. "But father wasn't worried. Throughout the duration of labor difficulties he was able to see the viewpoint of both the employer and the worker."

She declared that on her lecture tours she had encountered no difficulty with the foes of the A. F. of L.

She prefers audiences of men and appears before them most frequently.

"I really believe most women's organizations could learn from men, especially about business-like procedure," she said. "Men are more efficient and generally more attentive."

When time permits, Miss Green engages in social activities and assists in the work of charitable organizations. She is an accomplished pianist.

Ohio Legislator Would Impose $500 Fine as Penalty.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Nudists would find Ohio as inhospitable as a briar patch if the legislature passed a bill introduced by Rep. Lawrence F. Kellar (D., Delaware).

The measure would make liable to a $500 fine or six months' imprisonment any person who practiced nudism or permitted his property to be used for a nudist camp.

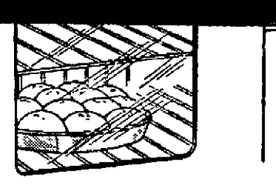
NEW COOKING HORIZONS

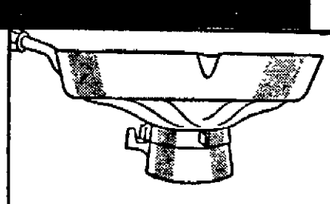
MADE POSSIBLE BY SENSATIONAL NEW TAPPAN Gas RANGE

"The New Horizon" is the name of the program to be presented on the third day of the Gasco Food Institute. Attend this dramatic session and see what the new cooking horizons hold for you and your kitchen.

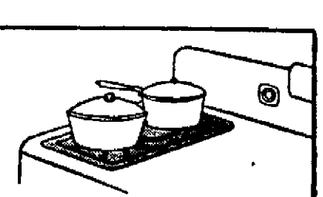


"VISUALITE" OVEN DOOR keeps your cake or roast always in sight as it cooks. A "peek" switch enables you to illuminate the oven interior

FLEXO-SPEED OVEN BURNER roasts meat to tender doneness in five hours, or bakes biscuits in 10 minutes from a cold start.



GIANT HIGH SPEED TOP BURNER gives higher speed for fast frying, greater efficiency. Saves time and fuel.



SIMMER SET VALVES on top burners give uniform low flame for "waterless" cooking, preserves natural flavors and health-giving vitamins in vegetables.

MARVELOUS new improvements on the Tappan gas range open up new cooking possibilities undreamed of a few years ago. An oven in which you can see a raw piece of beef turn into a glorious roast. An oven burner which will maintain temperatures low enough to cook a roast in an open pan for five hours, and yet fast enough to bake biscuits in ten minutes from a cold start. Top burners with simmer-set valves for "waterless" cooking. These and countless other developments step you into a new realm of cooking.

SAVE TIME, STEPS, MONEY

These sensational improvements are measured best in terms of greater convenience and economy. They save you time, steps and money. They give you happier hours in the kitchen and make possible more hours of freedom outside. From top burner to broiler, the modern gas range is built to give the finest cooking performance yet, at less cost than ever before. But to fully appreciate these great new features you should see them demonstrated at the Gasco Food Institute. Afterwards, inspect the full line of Tappan models at The Gas Company. Find out how easily you can install a Tappan on a convenient payment arrangement. Begin now, to enjoy the new cooking horizons made possible by this range of tomorrow.

DOZEN COUNTIES END 1938 WITH RELIEF DEFICIT

76 Others Show Surplus, as Year's Cost of Caring for Needs Shows Decrease.

Twelve counties ended 1938 with poor relief deficits totaling $3,378,216, State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson reported today.

The 76 other counties had surpluses aggregating $1,538,772. One of them was Richland, with a balance of $8,500.

Ohio's poor relief bill last year was $25,660,691 as compared with approximately $27,000,000 in 1937, Ferguson said.

The state government paid $18,823,567 of the bill; the local governments the remainder.

The cities and counties obtained $5,880,638 by issuing notes to be paid off by 1939-40-41 revenues from the utility, beer and admissions taxes. Twelve local subdivisions also issued $739,819 worth of relief notes in anticipation of 1939 sales tax collections.

From $200 to $2,000,000.

The deficits, according to the auditor's report, ranged from $247 in Morgan county to $2,059,145 in Cuyahoga county. The largest surplus at the end of the year was $389,098 in Hamilton county; the least, $74 in Perry county.

While the 76 counties had a combined unencumbered balance of $1,538,772 on Dec. 31, they began 1938 with a surplus of $1,222,769.

The other counties with deficits were:

Athens $5,256; Belmont $15,612; Butler $8,288; Carroll $307; Clark $137,674; Fayette $3,982; Jefferson $2,024; Lucas $851,553; Montgomery $224,998; and Summit $69,130.

BAPTISTS HEAR COLLEGE PREXY

Head of School for Indians One of Speakers at Meeting of Mansfield Association.

More than 150 Baptists from nine surrounding communities attended the mid-winter gathering of the Mansfield Baptist association held yesterday at the Park Avenue Baptist church.

The all-day meeting closed with a dinner last night at which Dr. Benjamin D. Weeks, president of Bacone College for Indians, Bacone, Okla., was the speaker.

"The Indians have always thought first of group welfare and second of themselves," Dr. Weeks said. He blamed lack of understanding on the part of the white man for the plight in which the Indians finally found themselves. He described the progress which the Indians have made through education such as is offered at Bacone college.

Preceding the talk, Dr. Paul Judson Morris of Granville, director of promotion for the Ohio Baptist convention, led a discussion period. Rev H. K. Freeman, pastor of the First Baptist church, Galion, presided.

A Christian Education conference was held in the afternoon under the leadership of Miss Helen Wickes of Granville, director of Christian Education for the Ohio Baptist convention. The supper was served by members of the Amoma class with Mrs. D. C. Cole as chairman. Rev. Hayes M. Braker, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, is moderator of the association.

Baptist churches in Galion, Bucyrus, Shelby, Vermilion, Perrysville, Loudonville, Pleasant Valley, Auburn, and Mansfield were represented at the meeting.

Finds 'Amazing' Improvement In School Papers

STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—(UP)—A survey of Pennsylvania's 1,500 high schools reveals that more than 700 newspapers are published by high school students, according to Louis H. Bell, assistant professor of journalism at Pennsylvania State college.

Utilizing every printing means from the web presses of metropolitan newspapers to the photo-offset method, the papers are mostly tabloid size to avoid the larger expense of regular sized sheets.

Bell said high school papers are much improved over the newspaper that used to tell "he and she" jokes with students' names tagged to the lines.

"The improvement in school newspapers within the last five years has been amazing," Bell declared. "Just a few years ago the school press was, at the best, amateurish. Today, even boys of 15 and 16 have quite a professional slant on the news, how to gather and how to present it.

Bell complimented Pennsylvania newspapers in fostering such an intense interest in journalism that the interest carried into the schools.

PLANS APPEAL

Contractor to Carry Damage Case to High Court.

Notice of appeal to the Fifth district court of appeals from a decision handed down Jan. 9 in common pleas court in a damage suit against him had been filed today by Carl H. Stander, Mansfield contractor.

Stander announced his intention to appeal to the higher court after a jury awarded a $1,200 judgment against him in a suit for $2,500 damages brought by John A. McCue, Mansfield. Stander's motion for a new trial was overruled.

McCue won the judgment for damages to his property on West First street which allegedly had been flooded by surface water from an adjoining lot owned by Stander. McCue contended that grading of the Stander lot had changed the flow of water, diverting it into the basement of his home.

A court order was also granted to require a change in the grade of Stander's property to halt the flooding.

Stander is represented by Atty. George Blecker and McCue by Attys. John C. O'Donnell and Raymond J. Brown.

FRANCO TROOPS IN BARCELONA

Loyalist Lines Crumple as Insurgents Push Offensive to Seize Capital.

ports on conditions inside the besieged industrial center differed.

Insurgent observers said the city last night was black and fogladen with only intermittent flashes of artillery splitting the darkness.

Shops, Stores Suspend.

Government dispatches, on the other hand, reported light and water systems were operating as usual although stores and shops suspended business when the attackers entered the suburbs.

Along the winding roads leading northward from Barcelona to the Fernch border thousands of refugees trudged on foot, carrying on their backs what few possessions they were able to take with them.

They were almost entirely confined to elderly people, children and women whose husbands were at the front.

Through the debris-strewn streets of the capital could be seen remainders of insurgent bombing raids which had killed more than 500 persons in the past three days and left scores of buildings burning.

Franco Agrees to Practice Restraint.

LONDON — (INS) — Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco has promised to exercise restraint and refrain from acts of revenge in territory occupied by his forces in Spain, it was announced officially in London today.

The British foreign office stated its representative at Burgos informed Franco that the British government hoped Franco would refrain from such acts on grounds they would create the "worst possible impression" in Britain and elsewhere.

The British representative was assured, according to the announcement, that such acts were "completely out of keeping with the character and intentions of Franco's government.

French Open Fire To Warn Insurgents.

CERBERE, France—(AP)—French anti-aircraft batteries today fired two warning rounds at four insurgent bombing planes which circled over French territory near this border city.

The appearance of the planes at 10:30 a. m. (5:30 a. m., EST) hampered the scheduled passage of about 400 non-Spanish combatants including 94 Americans through the international tunnel from Spain to France.

The four planes, flying low in clear weather, crossed the mountain frontier near Cerebere, but flew out over Spanish waters as soon as the French guns went into action.

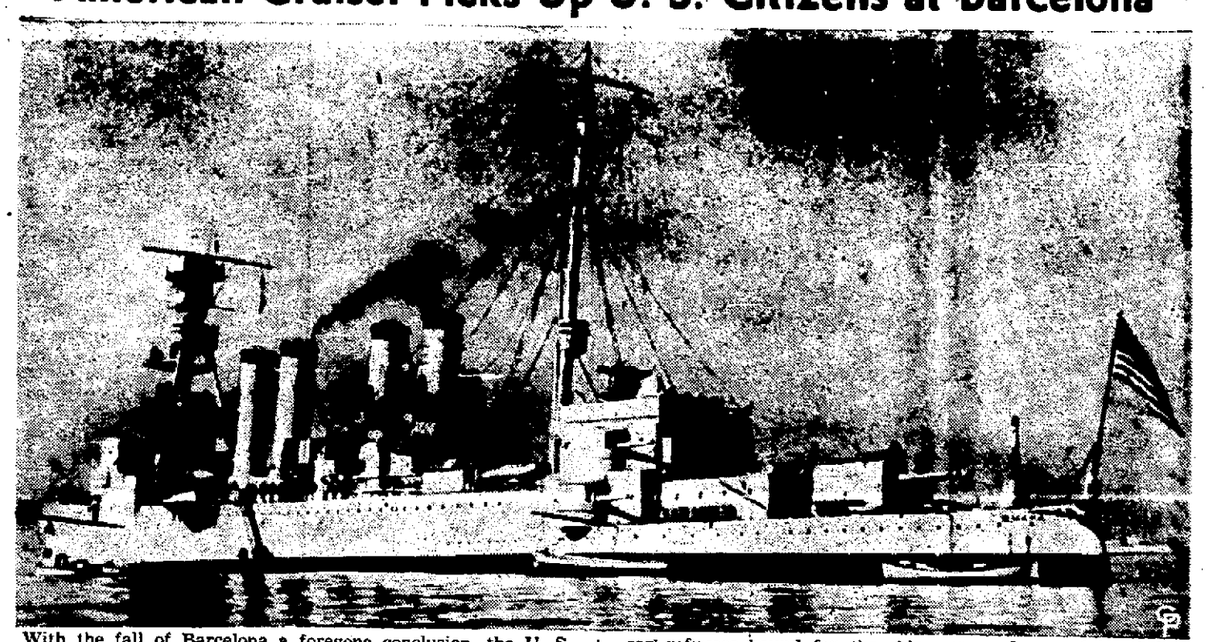
Spanish government anti-aircraft batteries at Port Bou opened fire and drove the planes to sea.

Italy Calls 60,000 Troops to Colors.

ROME—(U.P.)—An official announcement today said 60,000 reservists of the class of 1902 had been re-called to the colors on February 1.

Coincidentally, the semi-official Informazion Diplomatica said that French fears in regard to the presence of Italian volunteer troops fighting with the Spanish insurgents in the Pyrenees were "truly excessive" and warned against "any further French-Russian intervention" which would oblige Italy to "resume liberty of action" — send more troops — into Spain.

American Cruiser Picks Up U. S. Citizens at Barcelona



With the fall of Barcelona a foregone conclusion, the U. S. cruiser Omaha, shown above, was taking off Americans in the beleaguered city. Dispatches from Barcelona today said American refugees bound for the ship were endangered by shell fire from Insurgent guns. The remaining American group in the Barcelona area was reported to be small.

A sociologist says "most people can't stand prosperity"—so, fortunately, most people don't have to.

The idea of a number of senators seems to be that if President Roosevelt wants Harry Hopkins he can have him.

Latest reports indicate that the ex-chorus girl is recovering nicely from the "terrible shock" of sharing in the Ruppert millions.

Why Not Obey Traffic Laws?

WHILE all this hullabaloo is going on about traffic law violations, and the need for more policemen to ENFORCE traffic regulations, why hasn't some one thought to suggest that a solution for the whole trouble would be for ALL motorists to OBSERVE traffic regulations voluntarily, instead of requiring a policeman to watch them?

It should be safely assumed that every person capable of operating an automobile, and licensed to drive, KNOWS the speed limits established for various streets, is familiar with regulations having to do with "stop" streets, traffic lights, turns at intersections, ban on double parking, and time-limits for parking in restricted areas.

Whatever has resulted in such a large number of motorists knowingly and wilfully violating traffic regulations intended to contribute to their own safety and to public convenience, it is a ridiculous commentary on elementary good-citizenship to regard fear of arrest as essential to observance of rules of safe driving and to prevent "hogging" of parking space on streets in the business district.

If more motorists would form habits of voluntary observance of traffic regulations the problem of enforcement would be reduced to policing comparatively few cars and drivers—thus removing requirement for present concentration of police department activities on this one phase of law enforcement.

Two Decades of the American Legion.

AS THE American Legion completes twenty years as an organization of World war veterans, it is timely to refresh recollection of the service that legionnaires have performed in local communities, states and nation during the past decade.

It is also fitting that former service men take note of past accomplishments, reaffirm their ideals and look to the future of themselves and their country.

Achievements of the American Legion in patriotic and benevolent activities during this 20-year period are impressive, with even greater opportunities lying ahead as the experience and sounder judgment of middle age supplants youthful exuberance of spirit without detracting from the serious purposes of the organization.

Partial listing of the program of activities developed and fostered by the American Legion, as a national organization, includes:

More than 323,000 children have received food, clothing or medical supplies as part of the child welfare program.

Legionnaires have sponsored 3,000 Boy Scout troops and 30,000 boys' baseball teams culminating in the Junior World's Series. Boys' state camps are held yearly.

Scholarships are awarded, essay and oratorical contests are held. Playgrounds are established and maintained.

Legionnaires stand ready to give emergency service in time of disasters. A mercy corps of 40,000 legionnaires mobilized during the 1936 Ohio river valley flood.

Respect for the flag, appreciation of the American form of government, warfare against subversive isms are all a part of the good citizenship program.

Among young people especially, there is an inclination to idealize men who have served in a war, which makes the precept and example of members of the American Legion valuable in inculcating principles and practices of Americanism and law-abiding citizenship in those of the younger generation.

In their peace-time patriotism, loyalty and constructive program of good works legionnaires merit commendation and encouragement.

Decadence of German Culture.

AT THE beginning of this century the cultural prestige of Germany was very high. The greatest ambition of American students was to study in German universities. Much of this feeling remained after the World war. But now it is gone. The decay of German learning under the Nazi regime is incredible.

Requirements for university entrance now are first, athletic ability; second, "character in relation to National Socialism," that is, orthodox Nazi views; third, scholarship.

There is little encouragement of scholarship, in the cultural or truly educational sense, after the student has entered. The ablest professors have emigrated or been sent to concentration camps for refusing to give up their educational ideals.

Students, instead of being encouraged in an impartial quest for knowledge, are drilled in the peculiar Nazi ideology, including this weird view of the human race:

"There is no physical or psychic attribute by which human beings and animals can be distinguished; there is only the differentiation between Nordic human beings on the one hand, and animals in general on the other, including non-Nordic, sub-human beings, which must be regarded as a transitional state."

In plain English, young Germans are taught that only "Nordics" are human; all other branches of the supposedly human race are just animals that may some time become human.

21st Child of WPA Worker.

MARRIED at the age of 17, the 38-year-old wife of a $9 a week WPA worker in Shreveport, La., has just given birth to her 21st child. The roster includes four sets of twins.

It is such occurrences as this that make the spread of social security to indigents a difficult problem for the self-sustaining part of the population.

According to President Roosevelt we are not spending more than we can afford—but where does he get that "we" idea?

One nice thing about Charley McCarthy—he admits it.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — In times past we have thought Senator Reynolds of North Caroline (is it necessary to add that he is a Democrat?) was merely loquacious. Now it can be demonstrated that in addition to being loquacious he is versatile, if not also ambidextrous.

The Congressional Record has come to that conclusion, for when it came time to print Senator Reynolds' speech on the floor a heading was placed over it reading:

"Prohibition, immigration and other issues."

Reynolds travels all over the world while he is not in the senate, and when he talks he travels all over the senate. Page boys place glasses of water here and there about the chamber when he begins so he can lubricate his throat at leisure. He pounds desks all the way around.

• • •

Here We Go.

"I AM happy to be able to report," says Reynolds (we will begin right in the middle. He did), "that, insofar as I have been able to observe, there are no open saloons in North Carolina.

"Whereas in Europe they have been dispensing with barmaids and substituting bartenders for barmaids, the situation has been reversed in the United States, for here we are supplanting bartenders with barmaids.

"I hope it will not be inferred that I drink. (Laughter, says the Congressional Record.) I have indulged in drink in the past; I am not bragging about it, but I do not drink now. I have learned better."

Enough about prohibition.

"Now, Mr. President (this is Reynolds speaking), I wish to bring to the attention of this body a subject which I believe should command the attention of every member . . . one relating to the more than 10,000,000 unemployed persons in the United States today."

It developed later that Senator Reynolds is not talking so much about unemployment per se as about the danger of immigrants, including refugees from Germany, displacing native American job holders. Already, says Senator Reynolds, there are 7,000,000 aliens illegally within our gates. He is against those here and against others coming here.

• • •

Watch Those Aliens!

MOREOVER, he is concerned about the displacement of labor by machinery, and he sees Brazilian cotton displacing American cotton.

One thing leads to another and Mr. Reynolds suspects aliens, especially those holding jobs in the Panama Canal Zone, are a menace to the national defense. (We must hurry on.)

Germany is invading South America with her barter system, he says, but look at Mexico. "They have seized all our properties . . . If we are going to withdraw diplomatic representation from Germany, I say we had better withdraw diplomatic representation from Mexico."

He surveys the international situation and asks why so much national defense?

"Who is going to attack us?"

"I understand that the Russians are liable to attack us," replies Senator Lundeen. "They have no navy, but they are teaching their men to swim with full equipment, and they are liable to land in New York almost any day." (Laughter.)

Timely Editorial

Reluctance In Borrowing.

Federal officials frequently criticize bankers for not lending to business more freely. The threat usually is that if the bankers do not render this service more readily, the government will have to step into the business. In fact, the government has gone into the banking business quite a way as it is.

Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the board of the Chase National bank, New York, in his annual report pointed out why business has not expanded more with all huge reserves due to governmental cheap money polices. He said there first must be willing borrowers and next they must be able to repay. Ability to repay is based on profits. Lack of belief that there is a chance for profit is restraining both borrowers and lenders, Mr. Aldrich concludes.

The nation would profit immediately from a quick and clear comprehension in Washington of that simple financial fact.—Toledo Blade.

"WHEN A MAN'S MARRIED—!"

Divided Views On Defense Needs

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—In actual appropriations for ships and guns, muinitions and planes, and training for preparedness generally President Roosevelt will get all he wants from Congress. Capitol Hill is much impressed with the notion that the surest way to preserve peace is to be so strong that it would be folly for any foreign country to drag us into war.

But Congress does not see eye to eye with the President on some of the purposes of increased national defense spending. It will not go along with him toward possible sanctions against aggressor nations. There is tremendous sentiment for minding our own business and not giving even too much tongue-lashing to the nations that are doing things of which we cordially disapprove.

There is a strong minority, headed by Key Pittman, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, which is for strong economic action against Japan. Senator Pittman is convinced that this country could punish Japan for its action in closing the door of Chinese trade to this country, and could do so without risk of provoking a war between Japan and the United States.

There is another strong minority which favors boycotting of Germany, partly because of Germany's treatment of the Jews, and partly because of her aggressions on Austria Czechoslovakia, and her keeping Europe constantly in a war scare. A much smaller minority feels the same way toward Italy.

• • •

BUT EVEN the three groups combined are only a minority, and it would be impossible to combine the three groups. Some, for instance, go along with Senator Pittman in the desire to apply sanctions to Japan, but are not willing to apply sanctions to Germany or Italy. All of those who would like to apply sanctions to Germany would not be willing to apply them to Japan.

In the cotton-growing states there is still deadly fear that if the United States should boycott Japan's silk, the price of cotton would drop out of sight. As a matter of fact, Japan has been cutting her purchases of cotton from the United States and increasing her purchases of this staple from Brazil and China. But the fear is still there.

The great majority in Congress still has the slogan "Keep out of Entangling Alliances," and is also vigorously against any overt word or act which might force Germany. Japan or any other nation to pick up Uncle Sam's gauntlet. Part of this is honest reasoning on the part of the senators and representatives themselves. Part of it, perhaps most of it, is from emphatic protest from the folks back home.

• • •

THE President will not get from the Bible Belt as much moral support as he had hoped for defense of our ideals, where they may be trampled in some foreign conflict. Instead of the reaction the White House expected from the emphasis on the necessity of protecting democracy so that religion would be safe, there is a tremendous fear, judging by the mail pouring in on Capital Hill, that the President may, by taking such a militant attitude, involve this country in some European quarrel.

On most of the appropriations the President has asked, this difference in views will make no difference in results. The line will be roughly drawn by Congress between arms essential for overseas attack BY the United States, on the one hand, and those which are clearly essential purely for defense of United States soil, on the other.

You and Your Nation's Affairs

"Going Places"—But How?

By ELIOT JONES
Professor of Transportation and Public Utilities, Stanford University.

WITH the unemployed running up into the millions, and with no marked diminution in their number despite the expenditure of billions of dollars annually by the federal and state governments in providing work and relief, it would seem that the most important task before the country is to establish conditions that will bring about an increase in production, and particularly in the production of those goods that minister to welfare and happiness.

What are these conditions? One essential condition is peace. War, of course, makes for a temporary acceleration of activity, and so does preparation for war, but war involves the wholesale destruction of life and property, and preparation for war leads to the production of goods that will be useful in prosecuting a war, but not useful in promoting economic and social well-being.

The proposed expenditures for rearmament, though they may be necessary in view of the threatening world situation, and though they may temporarily alleviate the unemployment situation, will not contribute to our long-run prosperity.

Another essential condition is incentive, and this means an adequate pecuniary reward. It may be that business executives, professional men, farmers and laborers can be stimulated to put forth their best efforts from hope of winning a blue ribbon of some sort, though this is doubtful, in most cases.

But an incentive is clearly necessary to induce the investment of funds entailing risk. Thus a leading chemical concern invested 22 million dollars over a period of six years before it earned a dollar of annual net profit, and it invested an additional 21 million dollars over a further period of 12 years before its profits equaled its previous losses.

Eighteen years and the expenditure of $43,000,000 to establish a paying business, giving employment to thousands of laborers! Such enterprises clearly will not be undertaken unless those in charge of investment funds anticipate that a reward commensurate with the risk will eventually be realized.

Many business men will thus be glad to have the President's assurance that he is not only a believer in peace, but also "a believer in the capitalistic system." On the latter point many have entertained considerable doubt.

Another essential condition is a reasonable degree of stability in the economic and political order. There must be a reasonably stable currency; protection from government competition with private enterprise; a belief in the intention and ability of the government to redeem its promises, which means that its indebtedness must be held within proper limits; and reasonable taxation, with not too frequent modification of the tax structure, contributing as that does to uncertainty.

Recently the President spoke approvingly of the idea that we are "going places." It is to be hoped, of course, that we are, but as every long-distance runner knows, the way to reach the goal in the shortest time is not to start out at a pace that can not be maintained.

We can either make progress toward the realization of our ultimate objective at "the natural tempo of human progress"—the limited tempo at which society can adapt itself to change—or we can fail to make any progres at all because we fall for the impracticable hasty improvisations urged on us by those who are in a tremendous hurry "to make America over."

As Others See It

Common Ailment.

"Mr. Hopkins says if he had it to do all over again he would talk less." His is not a rare experience.—Toledo Blade.

Listen, World!

A Lady Politician Makes History.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

WHO says Women can't be broad-minded . . . play the political game as fairly as any man? Seems to me I've uttered some such sentiments myself! But here's where I eat my words and start a round of cheers for Mrs. Mary Bettwy, Democratic recorder-elect of Santa Cruz county, Arizona.

It's a short tale but primed for bear! For years, women have held the recorder's job in Santa Cruz county—which naturally meant considerable ructions at every campaign. The last was no exception. Mrs. Mary Bettwy was running for the first time. Opposed to her was Mrs. Ada Jones—a right smart lady who'd served several terms in the same position. Came the great day and Mary B. won hands down, with everyone wondering which of her many devoted friends she'd choose as deputy. A ticklish picklement since each D. F. naturally considered herself peculiarly qualified for the chore—and all set for a Good Hard Cry if she didn't get it.

DESPITE WHICH, MRS. BETTWY PROCEEDED TO IGNORE HER BOSOM CHUMS AND APPOINT HER ERSTWHILE OPPONENT, MRS. ADA JONES, FOR THE JOB!

Agitation! Consternation! What did this mean? It meant that a woman, at last, had had sufficient spunk to defy entrenched sentimentality, and take a long-range view of the issue at hand. Said Mary B.:

"Despite the fact Mrs. Jones was my opponent, I recognized in her a very capable woman. I wanted capability in my administration so I felt it to my best interests and those of the county to appoint her."

Which, sez I, is not only slick political technique but a certain sign that females are becoming Regular Citizens. Which takes more gumption as well as flexibility that one might realize at first thought. For since history's gray dawn, women have been forced willy-nilly to be Four-Wall creatures with a Four-Wall technique and view-point. Pop might get out and Talk Things Over with the Boys, thereby his muchly praised Broad-Gauge Male Attitude.

But Mom had no such privileges. She was far too busy keeping nine kids, a leaky roof, a broody hen and a Gabby Old Man in order. If her interests didn't extend beyond her own back wall who can blame her? Yet is certainly did develop a marked tendency in Mom to See Things Her Own Way . . . and raise 57 varieties of Cain with anyone who didn't.

Why is the average woman such a pain in the neck as a politician? That's why. Politics is essentially a man's game and its moves are based on male psychology. But a woman—even though she may approve of the end to be achieved—despises the masculine method of achieving it. To her, people and personalities, private prejudices, preferences and principles, always take precedent over abstract issues. And she can't see why on earth you don't understand that all-important fact. Compromise? You might's well ask a hungry tigress to leggo a tender sirloin, as request a woman to relinquish one teeny-weeny-bittiest-bit of her convictions.

Yet, in the face of ages 'n' ages of such practice, Mary B. comes along and shoves personalities aside, and demands Ability—regardless. Did I say that was playing the game as fairly as a man? Actually it's playing it with far more fairness and intelligence than most men could muster. This isn't merely a political maneuver . . . it's a gesture that yanks the whole human race up to a higher plane of civilization and should set new standards for human performance all along the line. Atta girl, Mary B.! Keep it up!

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Such a day . . . Suuuuch a busy day:

10:30—Get up, breakfast, glance through morning papers, depart for office.

11:02—Scan through the mail and discover this note from the wife of a friend of mine who is in Florida: "You ought to come down here for awhile, Tuck. You could pick up lots of material on the beach." . . . What do you mean by material, honey? . . . Also discover 17 missives from press-agents, which gives rise to the thought that reading 17 blurbs is a lot of time to waste on press-agents.

11:48—Sneak down to the music shop and idle away half an hour looking for a recording of "Constancy," but no can find and decide to settle for "At Night by the Ocean," which I have been whistling until I think I will go nuts if I don't get on a different tune soon.

12:54—Two fast dogs and java at Hamburger Joe's.

1:39—Go on shopping tour with Janet Gaynor and Adrian, the designer — only they aren't aware that I'm along. They are about two paces ahead of me as they browse through Macy's . . . Adrian has on a suit, the material of which looks like polka-dot. Janet pauses in the book department, in the millinery department, and at the perfume counter. . . . Now what can she want with a book, a hat, and a bottle of perfume?

3:23—Get a telephone tip that the police intend to pull a surprise Chinatown raid in half an hour, and decide to attend.

• • •

THE raid doesn't come off and all I get is a long, dreary subway ride.

4:55—Spend an hour with a temperamental typewriter composing essays, then make a belated break for the barber, who eyes me critically and states, "You're about two weeks overdue, aren't you?"

6:45 — Dinner at the Rainbow Grill with Mrs. John McKay, wife of the head of the Port of New Orleans, and their daughter Mignon, who came up from Louisiana for "just one day to see "Hellzapoppin'" . . . But they aren't staying just a day. . . . "Daddy went right back home to see a new motor boat he bought, but mother and I are obliged to stay at least 10 days, else how can we see "The Boys from Syracuse." and "Abe Lincoln" and Fredric March in "The American Way" and four or five other shows and buy some clothes and maybe visit some friends at West Point?"

• • •

SHE is certainly correct. You just can't do all those things in one day.

8:40—Attended opening of Noel Coward's new revue, "Set to Music," starring Bea Lillie, and the impression is confirmed that no first night is quite like a Coward first night. . . . Plenty orchids, plenty ermine, plenty high hats, plenty snobs. . . . Those Coward devotees don't care how late they arrive, but can they make noise after they do get there!

11:50—Meet Billy Rose at the Diamond Horseshoe and he tells me of a man he knows who wrestles live sharks. . . . He's in training off the Florida coast now. Rose intends to build a big salt-water pool, stock it with sharks, and bring the guy up for the Fair. He also will produce a musical comedy in water, a huge aquacade, in which the chorines will swim—not dance—and Eleanor Holm will be Queen Mermaid and Johnnie Weismuller may be Kingfish.

1:35—Buy the bulldog editions of three morning papers, hail a hack, and home.

2:05—Try to read but oh, so sleepy, and off goes the light. And that's that.

Pointed Paragraphs

A successful man sees things as they are, not as others tell him they are.

A coward is a man who knows he's wrong and refuses to admit it.

Daily Bible Thought

KEEP THEM ALL: Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength: this is the first commandment.—Mark 12:30.

A Farmer's Diary

Night Walk In Winter.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THERE was no moon. The stars were bright above the snow. When we had left the lights of home behind, our eyes became accustomed to the night. Side by side—my wife and I—we followed the two curving lines of broken track down the center of the snowy ribbon that was the road. Our feet crunched on the smooth, dry snow, and the misty breath showed on the still night air. It was a pleasant, quiet, silent cold that stretched away to the borders of the woods and to the far, starry horizon.

Across the nearer fields, yellow blobs of light showed where neighbors' houses nestled upon their acres of sustaining land. Two mellow, glowing patches of night sky along the horizon line marked where two neighboring cities sprawled. The moving finger of light from an airport beacon made its intermittent arc across the clouds. The quiet stars were there, when it had passed.

Along the road, tall lacy branches of dead goldenrod were outlined delicately with clinging snow. The fence posts, the clear outlines of trees, the shadows of the overhanging bank, were black contrasts upon the white expanse.

We heard the rumble of traffic on the highway miles away; we heard the whistle of a train, the drone of a distant airplane, far overhead. But plodding along on foot, we were content. The quiet country road was ours. The stars were ours, and the calm, exhilarating night. Our lungs were full of clean cold air. We felt the warmth within that comes from bodily exertion.

A neighbor's dog let out a gleeful, ecstatic yelp and we laughed together at his intonation. Then turning about, we swung into step and followed back the way we had come, to where our home lights and our own "wee bairns" were waiting.

TELL OF UNION NEGOTIATIONS AT GALION FIRM

Witnesses at NLRB Hearing Testify About Contract Signed by Company.

GALION—The NLRB hearing here to determine whether the United Garment Workers of America, Local 147, affiliated with the AFL, or the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, Local 325, affiliated with the CIO, should represent the employes of the Stratbury Manufacturing company for purposes of collective bargaining, went into its fourth day today. The hearing is being held at the public library.

On the stand Tuesday afternoon was Harold B. Newman, president and treasurer of the Stratbury plant. He was called out of turn by the counsel for the Amalgamated because he had to leave Tuesday night for a business trip to New York. Newman said he had known of activities to organize by the Amalgamated union since the NRA four years ago.

Tells of Contract.

Newman stated further that he had a "closed shop" contract with the Amalgamated and that at the time the contract was signed called a meeting of employes after work and informed them of the contract and that it was advisable because more garments could be sold if they displayed a union label. He also stated under questioning that he knew of the efforts being made by the United Garment Workers to organize.

Another witness called by the counsel for the United Garment Workers was Mrs. Cecil Amick, a machine operator. She told of a conference with Newman in July when Mrs. Helen Prosser was present. She stated that Newman told them the Amalgamated union was the best since it was better acquainted with the garment industry than any other union. She said she signed a CIO card 60 days ago because all girls in the finishing department who were not affiliated with this union were being laid off, and that she signed the card because she wanted to keep working.

Mrs. Amanda Kersh was the next witness called by counsel for the United Garment Workers. She told of Newman's talk to the plant employes when he introduced Ben Peppercorn of the Amalgamated union on July 28 when he invited all employes to a meeting in a public hall of Galion.

She told of complaining to the management that women were being laid off who had seniority rights, and that she was advised to take her problems to Joe Zucker, chairman for the Amalgamated union.

ASHLAND SUIT SEEKS $25,000 IN TRUCK DEATH

I. N. Wagner Says Defendants Were to Blame for Demise of Son in Road Mishap.

ASHLAND—The sum of $25,000 damages for the death of his son is asked in common pleas court here in a suit filed by I. N. Wagner against Louis H. Baldwin of Leavittsburg and Lewis E. Sheffler of Niles.

Charging the defendants with being responsible for the death of his son, who died from the results of injuries sustained when a truck driven by Baldwin crashed into a state highway department carriage, Wagner says in his petition that there were several contributory causes leading to the accident.

Charges Excessive Speed.

He declares that the highway department carriage was off the road, and that there was plenty of clearance, but that the truck in passing did not give way to the left, that it was traveling at an excessive speed, that it had faulty brakes, that its driver was negligent, and that he did not have his machine under control.

Under Fire

Vigorous fight in the senate was projected by President Roosevelt when he named former Representative Thomas R. Amlie, "lame duck" Wisconsin Progressive, for the six-year $10,000-a-year term on the interstate commerce commission. Amlie, 41, served three terms in the house, and was one of the extreme left wingers before his defeat in the senatorial primary last summer. He espoused such causes as a processing tax on industry and a constitutional amendment which would permit socialization of all forms of business enterprise.

BUCYRUS POLICE CHIEF 36 YEARS LEAVES OFFICE

Trautman Resigns Effective Feb. 1 After Long Career as Department's Head.

BUCYRUS — Philip Trautman, chief of the Bucyrus police department for 36 years, will retire from duty Feb. 1 and go on pension Feb. 15.

The chief's retirement was announced today by Mayor George T. Dustman upon receipt of Trautman's resignation effective Feb. 1. Although the retirement becomes effective Feb. 15, Trautman will leave his office on Feb. 1 for a vacation before relinquishing his final hold to the office he has held so long.

His successor will be chosen from one of several patrolmen who are believed ready to take the promotional examination necessary after one year's service on the force. The civil service commission was scheduled to meet late today or tomorow to arrange for the examination.

Plans Appointment.

Mayor Dustman will make the appointment, which must be the man receiving the highest grade of all of the applicants, according to the mayor. A second examination will then be held for an eligible list from which a new patrolman will be appointed by Safety Director W. G. Beebe to fill the vacancy caused on the force by the promotion of the new chief.

Chief Trautman began his service on the force in 1897 and served until April 27, 1902, when he was appointed marshal. It was not until early in 1903 that he was made chief of police by the late Mayor H. E. Valentine. Earlier, Trautman had followed the trade of plasterer and at one time served as a member of the fire department under the city's veteran fire chief, W. F. Mader.

Trautman believes that during his tenure in office he has arrested persons for violating every known law on the local statute books.

His first police force consisted of Officers Louis Schuler, father of former Mayor Arthur T. Schuler, George Schurr, James Ghist, "Shorty" Sharp, Mat Coulter, John Kennedy and James Ferree. Ghist remained on the force until a year ago, when he died.

Chief Trautman first gained state-wide recognition for his ability to recover stolen horses. For years Bucyrus has a record for recovering every horse that was stolen within the city. Now that he is leaving the force, Trautman leaves the same record, but for automobiles rather than horses. Each year the department, under his direction, has recovered every automobile stolen in Bucyrus with but one exception.

CHAPTER VIII

"You're tired," Kurt said. "Breakfast and bed for you. Thank Nancy for having a convenient headache. I'm going to try to make the same train with you tomorrow." Make the same train and talk to you, Alix, and when we're home see you often and. . . . This was living again! This was living when you had your arm around a girl who was sweet and lovely and gay, a girl he could trust! It had been a year since he had trusted girls. He had told himself bitterly that they were all like Gina, that they were cheaters and liars. . . . Alix and Don? He wanted to laugh. Never! "Alix and I," he though happily.

She would try to make him happy, she was thinking. She would try to make him forget that there were women like Gina who valued money above a fine man's love. If he loved her, Alix, she would return it in double measure. Gina had taken. She would give. He had shared Gina with her work and her glittering, unreal world. She, Alix, would make him her whole world.

They came into a crowded place where people, tired from the night's gayety, were having eggs and coffee.

Across a table Alix and Kurt smiled at each other.

His eyes, his mouth were tender. "I think you're swell," he said. "For numerous reasons. But most of all, I think because you've still got star dust in your eyes, Alix. Keep it."

* * *

Alix thought, her crooked, red mouth curving, "I'll keep it as long as you look at me as you are looking at me now and falling in love with me. I'll lose it if you hurt me and no other man will ever be able to put it back. Star dust in my eyes. . . . No one ever said that to me before. No one ever noticed but you."

When she looked at him, he was looking away from her, looking at the entrance where four people were coming in, a red-haired woman in a silver coat, a dark-haired woman in a silver fox cape, and two tall young men. Then the dark woman turned and saw Kurt and stopped still and just looked at him. . . .

It was Gina Rowland.

For a moment Alix's own feelings were lost in admiration of Gina's brunette loveliness. Shining black hair brushed back and curled high and a diamond clip gleaming from it. An oval, ivory face, luminous black eyes, and a dazzling smile. . . .

She saw Kurt inhale deeply on his cigaret and saw his mouth, tender a moment ago, tighten. Still Gina stood there, her lovely lips parted, her amazing eyes lighted with surprise and pleasure to see him.

And spiritually Alix felt Kurt leave her! A moment ago he had been close to her and he had been happy! Now he was close no longer and his eyes were not happy any more. . . .

Gina followed her friends to a table. Kurt looked back at Alix and tried to say casually, "An old friend of mine. Gina."

"Yes, I know."

Their food came and they ate but they did not say anything to each other.

Then a waiter came to Kurt and spoke to him in a low voice.

Kurt said, "Alix, do you mind if I say hello to Gina? She wants me to come over."

Alix said, "No, Kurt. I don't mind," as casually as she could and watched his tall figure walk across the crowded restaurant to Gina and saw Gina extend a slim jeweled hand, smile, and then speak.

Alix put down her fork. She could not eat. They had been so close and happy until Gina came. What keeps a man loving a woman who has been cruel to him? She bit into her lip. It would have been so easy to cry.

At the end of the room Gina said to Kurt, "What a grand surprise, seeing you! You look splendid. I want to hear all about you, what you've been doing and where you've been and if architecture intrigues you as much as ever."

He said, "It does and I haven't been around much." And smiled. "So that pretty well covers it. You look splendid, too, and sunburned."

"Havana. Won't you join us?"

"Thanks, no. Alix. . . ."

"Alix?" Gina asked, her eyes and voice curious.

"Alix Barton. A girl from home. Friend of Don and Nancy Lawrence's. You've met them. We've had quite a night. . . ."

"Will you be here long?"

"Going back tomorrow."

Gina said, "Oh, that's too bad. Don't go back tomorrow."

* * *

He left them after a few minutes. And Alix, seeing him across the room to her, thought, "I'll know when I see him close if he still cares for her. She's so beautiful. He can't help but be conscious of how beautiful she is and he can't help but remember what they were to each other until a year ago."

"Sorry to keep you waiting, Alix," he said and smiled. "Now our eggs and coffee are cold. We'll get another order."

He tried to be as he had been before Gina came in but Alix knew he was disturbed. They left, took a taxi to the hotel, and he went up with her as far as the hotel room.

"See you at breakfast," he said, "and we'll all go back on the same train."

She forced a smile. "Thank you for another lovely evening, Kurt." A perfect evening—spoiled! How detached he was now!

"Good night, Alix."

Nancy had left the lamp on the night table burning. Coming in the room quietly, Alix realized how tired she was, how achingly and disappointed and—afraid.

Nancy stirred, opened her eyes, and sat up.

"You didn't get home until morning after all, did you?" she asked. "Sit down and tell me all about it. Father and I were just so much excess baggage that I couldn't bear it. He went to bed, too. Must be a sign of something when Don Lawrence goes to bed at ten in New York."

Alix looked at her steadily. "Gina Rowland came into a restaurant where we were."

Nancy's smiling mouth relaxed. "Oh! Did he. . . ."

"She sent for him and he went over to her table and talked to her. She was with some other people. I felt I knew his thoughts—before then. Then he—he closed up like a book. I don't know what he was thinking. She's so beautiful, Nancy."

"I wonder if he'll. . . ."

"He said he'd meet us for breakfast and go back with us. If he doesn't, I'll know that he—that he went back to her."

Nancy shook her disheveled brown head. "I don't believe he will. He's too strong for that."

Alix said, "The mind is strong but the flesh is weak. You see, it wasn't the Gina sitting in a restaurant with another man that disturbed him particularly. When he looked at her, he was remembering what they had been to each other two years ago when they were first in love. Nothing she's done to him has made him forget their happy moments. I can't compete with his memories of her."

"I won't like him if he goes back to her. Will you?"

Alix temples throbbed. We were on the crest of the hill climbing upward, you and I, Kurt. . . . "I don't know," she said quietly. "Love makes a fool out of the strong as well as the weak."

* * *

They met Don in the lobby the next morning. But Kurt was not there.

"We'll wait around awhile," Don said. He looked at Alix. "You shouldn't have kept him out so late last night. And you look tired this morning."

Tired for not sleeping, she thought, for wondering if he had gone back to the restaurant last night and for visualizing Kurt and Gina together again. Tired from reliving the perfect part of last night when he had held her more closely and more tenderly as the hours passed, and when in Washington Square he had kissed her fingers and said tender things and her hopes had taken wings. . . .

"I'll call him," Don said. "It isn't like Kurt to stand you up." He came back after a few minutes and said, "No answer. But he knows what train we're getting so we'll probably run into him at the station." Then, frowning, he asked, "Nothing wrong, is there? You two are pretty quiet about something."

Nancy said, "He saw Gina last night. That's what's wrong."

He looked directly at Alix. "Well, we can't starve because Kurt saw his first love, can we? I knew those two would get together again."

And Alix knew he was glad Kurt had seen Gina!

Later her eyes flew from one tall figure to another in the great station. Don seemed restless and anxious to go. Nancy looked at her furtively. The things they were not saying to each other, Alix thought miserably! She knew Don was thinking, "If Kurt has gone back to Gina, there'll be nobody between Alix and me except young Eddie who is too poor to count."

The gates were opened. Don held her arm firmly as they walked down to the tracks. She looked back once as she had last night at a certain bench in Washington Square but last night she had looked back happily with star dust in her eyes. This morning the eyes that looked back through the throng of people, hoping, hoping to see Kurt had no star dust in them but disappointment and a new and bitter hurt.

She did not look back again. It hurt to look back. And it took courage to look ahead to Tod who had no faith in himself or people, no ambition, no fight, and beyond him to Eddie who, though he had little, really had more to offer than Don, Eddie who worked and hoped and loved her.

Nancy said, "I'm sorry, Alix. But I can't believe it. I just can't."

"I can," Alix said. "I do."

HENLEIN STILL NAZI 'BOSS' IN SUDETENLAND

Husky Organizer Stands at 'Tops' With Hitler And His Word's Law.

(By Associated Press)

REICHENBERG, Germany. — Konrad Henlein, the husky Sudeten organizer who paved the way for Reichsfuehrer Hitler's march into Czechoslovakia, is the envy of Austrian Nazi leaders.

The bespectacled gym teacher from Asch remains the boss while others such as Arthur Seysz-Inquart—who played roles in Austria similar to his in Czechoslovakia—are bumping over political roads in rumble seats.

Henlein, who is good at turning handsprings, has all government economic and party power in his two big hands. As far as Sudetenland goes there is none other than he.

The Sudetenland fuehrer has been off the front pages of the world since the Munich settlement last Sept. 29 by which Germany acquired 3,000,000 Sudetens. But under the Nazis he has much greater power than he had under Czechoslovakia. Nothing moves in this region without his authority.

Henlein Has Confidence.

As soon as the German army moved in and established control, Hitler told Henlein to keep right on being the local fuehrer Henlein has the confidence of the Sudetens and Hitler took advantage of that fact.

Hitler named him statthalter—or governor—gauleiter—or district leader—and topped those off with the much more weighty job of reich commissioner for integration of Sudetenland into the reich.

These gave Henlein all the strings to pull. Only Hitler himself stands above him in his own bailiwick.

It was not the same after the annexation of Austria last March 13.

Seysz-Inquart, who was named Austrian minister of interior and safety by Kurt Schuschnigg, last chancellor of independent Austria, at the fuehrer behest, signed the famous telegram asking Hitler to send the German army to Austria to "prevent bloodshed."

In the reorganization after anschluss, Seysz-Inquart became statthalter, an office which has small authority. Another man was named party leader and Berlin sent still another to Vienna above them both as reich commissioner.

Viennese say jokingly that Seysz-Inquart's reward was "presidency of the Alpine club."

Conditions in Austria were different from those in Sudetenland and there may have been sound reasons for sending in a "foreigner" and splitting power three ways.

But some informed persons believe the Nazis profited from their mistakes in setting up the Austrian regime within Germany and centered authority in Sudetenland in the local leader whom the people knew and trusted.

THEATERS

JOHNNY WEISSMULLER, swimming champ, only makes a picture once in a while—not even once a year—but he has just signed a new contract with M-G-M for three more years, with an option for four more, at a salary boost. . . . There is so much material for "Stanley and Livingstone," that part of it may be saved for a sequel. . . . Robert Taylor and Myrna Loy will be costarred in "Lucky Night." . . . Florence Rice will vacation in Florida with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Grantland Rice. Florence's latest picture is "Four Girls In White."...Buddy Ebsen probably will give up the stage and screen to finish his medical course at the University of Florida. . . .

* * *

Spies at Work.

"Smashing The Spy Ring," the Columbia drama featuring Ralph Bellamy and Fay Wray, will be one of the two features at the Madison the last half of the week, starting tomorrow. From federal court records is taken the story of the kidnaping of an army officer by foreign spies who hoped to force military secrets from him. The whole esplonage workings, the stealing of White House stationery, the forging of passports, the use of beautiful women, is revealed in film drama. A Jane Withers comedy "Arizona Wildcat," in which Buck Withers rides again, is in the second feature.

* * *

Newspaper Story.

Joan Blondell as a young newspaper woman who becomes interested in the salvation of a bad boy who is to be sent to the reform school, goes through the heart-breaking disillusionment of seeing her best efforts go for naught—apparently—in "Off The Record," a newspaper story which brings the blond star and Pat O'Brien to the Ohio today. The picture runs through Friday. Bobby Jordan, as the problem boy, has an important role.

* * *

Modern Problem.

Love and marriage comes smack up against the problems of modern life in "The First 100 Years," in which Robert Montgomery plays a husband who doesn't earn nearly so much money as his wife, Virginia Bruce. The question of whether a wife with greater earning capacity should pay her husband alimony is a phase of the story, which is current on the Ritz screen. "Blockade," a dramatic picture of the Spanish war, is also shown, with Madeliene Carroll and Henry Fonda.

Custom-Built Father.

Deanna Durbin manufactures a father out of her imagination and then finds him in real life in "Mad About Music," in which the popular juvenile star appears at the Park. Deanna is the daughter of an American movie star, hidden away in a French girls' school in order to conceal her identity. Herbert Marshall is the make-believe father and Gail Patrick the mother. A Joe Penner comedy, "Mr. Doodle Kicks Off," rounds out the Park bill for the last half of the week, starting Thursday.

* * *

Family Steps Out.

It isn't often that the son and daughter of millionaires go to a night club with the butler and the personal maid, but in "Tovarich," it was different. The butler was a prince and the maid a Grand Duchess of the Russian nobility. Claudette Colbert and Charles Boyer are starred, and Anita Louise and Mellville Cooper are the son and daughter of the millionaires Basil Rathbone is a distinguished but sinister figure as the Russian communist. "Tovarich," and "Big City," with Spencer Tracy and Luise Rainer are at the Majestic.

No More Waking Up Mornings Feeling Achy, Tired and Dizzy

Perrysville, Ohio, farmer's wife, feels like new person since Vendol relieved constipation. Now has good appetite and steady nerves.

Vendol grows more popular day by day as the many satisfied men and women living right here in town tell of the wonderful relief it gives. Here is what Mrs. Ezra F. Snyder of route 2, Perrysville, said in praise of this excellent compound of Nature's Roots, and Herbs combined with Mild Alkalines a few days ago to the Vendol Man in Central Drug Store.

"I was a victim of constipation, which caused no end of other troubles; I started every day by awakening with a headache and often so dizzy I couldn't stoop over, without everything turning black in front of me. I felt tired and achy, tongue was coated, and there was an awful taste in my mouth.

"I had no appetite but what I did eat disagreed with my stomach and caused bloating from sour, acid gas, with a choking feeling. I really felt awful some days.

"I heard a lot of praise for Vendol, so decided to give it a trial. I got a bottle and a box of the little Vendol Laxative Tablets, and soon found this medicine did all that was said about it.

"I never had anything to promote such smooth, natural, bowel movements as Vendol, and now here is no more waking up feeling achy, tired, dizzy or headachy.

MRS. EZRA F. SNYDER

My tongue has lost the coating, the brassy taste in my mouth is gone. I enjoy hearty meals with no sour stomach, gas, bloating, or acid risings; then when night comes, I get restful sleep.

"It's a great experience to find relief like this and I am thankful to Vendol for all of it, and I hope many people suffering like I did will give it a chance to help them, too."

Don't delay giving this great compound of Nature's Roots and Herbs with Mild Alkalines a chance to help you. It is sold by leading druggists everywhere and the Vendol Man is daily at Central Drug Store, Cor. Main & Fourth Sts., to explain all about it. So, visit him soon.

House Votes on $5,000,000 'Stop-Gap' Relief Bill Today

PLAN TO END 'EARMARKING' UP IN SENATE

Committee Urges Higher Sums for Cities in Allocation of Sales Tax Revenue.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—House passage of the temporary $5,000,000 relief bill was anticipated today as the senate prepared for action on the first of several administration measures designed to end earmarking of state taxes and to pool most income in the state's general revenue fund.

The house finance committee was expected to send the relief bill to the floor without much delay. Leaders planned to suspend the rules and put the measure through in order that senate approval might be obtained and the bill be sent to the governor before the week-end.

Vote Due Today.

In the meantime the senate was to vote on the Maston bill—reported out of its taxation committee only a few hours after its introduction—which provides that with the exception of specific amounts earmarked for local governments all proceeds of the sales tax shall be paid into the general revenue fund.

The committee agreed to allow local governments $13,500,000 in 1939 and $12,000,000 in 1940. The bill originally called for $10,000,000 to local governments each year, but the amount was raised upon protests of cities.

Later another $1,500,000 was added for 1939 because of outstanding obligations which must be redeemed this year. These obligations are relief notes issued in 1938 anticipation of 1939 allocations.

The bill is one of a number which Governor Bricker has said would so "loosen up" state income that schools, poor relief and old age pensions could be financed from the present tax sources. He has advocated specific appropriations from the general fund to meet these requirements.

Three other measures intended to effect this policy also were introduced. They would divert all the state's share of the intangibles tax, all liquor revenue and all proceeds from the "use" tax into the general revenue fund.

Opera Star's Mate Shot Accidentally, Physicians Insist

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—His doctors insisted today that Jules E. Brulatour, millionaire husband of the opera and movie star, Hope Hampton, could have fired accidentally the pistol bullet which nipped his right ear, penetrated the scalp behind it and lodged in the nape of his neck.

District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey ordered investigation of several aspects of the shooting, which Brulatour said was accidental.

No longer insisting that he got the wound "falling downstairs," he and Miss Hampton greeted all comers to their suite of rooms at Lennox Hill hospital and explained that he "got it last Sunday night while cleaning his gun."

Dewey demanded to know why the shooting was not reported promptly to police, who got their first information on it yesterday afternoon; where the gun was; (Brulator didn't remember) whether he had a license for it; (he said his lawyers looked after those things) what happened to the bullet (the surgeon said he gave it to Miss Hampton for a souvenir).

Up and Down THE STREET

Some idea of the work of a reference librarian may be glimpsed by just a sample of the things she was asked to find during the past year. Among them were: an article on verse-speaking choirs; when were center-guides for drawers first used in furniture? machines that have been invented but never used; hospitals in trailers; what is firefoam? history of the first Sorosis club in America, and the development of opera in Czechoslovakia. And seldom is the reference librarian "stumped."

This business of maintaining the city's traffic lights is quite a job, take it from City Electrician Ernest Adams whose duties include keeping them in working order. Last year Adams and his assistants replaced 875 bulbs which burned out. Incidentally the lights cost the city nearly $200.

Patterned after Lowell Thomas' "Tall Story club," a similar organization has been formed by the mechanical drawing students at Senior high school. Boys of the classes presented the first certificate of membership to their teacher, J. E. Smith, they said, because of a story he recently told them concerning college life.

Members of that special Richland county parole grand jury—and perhaps a few others—will be interested in this bit of news from Cleveland. Paul K. Hergenroeder, who was an assistant attorney general in the Davey administration, and one of the youngest men ever to hold such a post, will direct a course in courtroom speaking at Cleveland college. Hergenroeder assisted in the Richland county parole investigation at the reformatory.

OUTLINE 1939 ROAD PROGRAMS

Trustees of Five Townships Confer Today With Sword on Paving Plans.

Meeting with county commissioners and County Engineer Howard C. Sword today at the courthouse, trustee from five townships in southern Richland county outlined their 1939 road programs for the county officials who will use the information in setting up the county's road program for the year.

Trustees from each of the townships were called in separately for an hour's conference, with the Troy township officials heading the procession.

Others who were to be called in during the day were the Jefferson, Washington, Monroe and Perry township trustees. Others will be asked to confer later with the county officials, the county engineer said.

By obtaining the township road plans directly from the trustees, work of setting up a new construction and maintenance program in accordance with the funds available to the county for the year is speeded up, Sword pointed out.

Trustees are asked to submit their financial requests to the county and in turn are told how much help they may obtain during 1939, he said.

All of the trustees and clerks from the county's 18 townships met with the commissioners and engineer several weeks ago in a preliminary discussion of the year's road program.

CIO DISOWNS MARTIN IN FAVOR OF RIVAL FORCES IN CIO SPLIT

(By United Press)

DETROIT—A dual union struggle for the estimated 400,000 members of the United Automobile Workers of America was precipitated today by the disowning of suspended President Homer Martin, and the recognition of his union enemies by the Congress of Industrial Organization.

Martin charged that the CIO had split the union because he resisted the "dictatorship" of its president, John L. Lewis.

The announcement that the CIO no longer recognized Martin as head of the union was made in Washington yesterday by Sidney Hillman and Philip Murray, CIO vice presidents. They said he had "identified himself with dual unionism and arrogant defiance of a labor union."

They recognized an anti-Martin faction, which organized last week, with R. J. Thomas as president and backed by 15 members of the UAW executive board whom Martin had suspended. The members, constituting a majority, retaliated by suspending Martin and electing Thomas in his place.

Martin said that "it is important for the entire labor movement that the CIO adds to its record of fostering and promoting dual unionism for the purpose of splitting those unions which prefer democracy to a dictatorship."

"Mr. Lewis, will find, however, that American labor will not readily accept his dictates. As for myself, I shall make no attempt to stay in the CIO's good graces," he said.

Martin's following in the union will remain uncertain until March 4, when they will hold a convention here to elect new officers and change the constitution. Thomas' faction has called a convention at Cleveland March 20 for the same purpose.

REMAINS ON JOB

Wierman to Stay as Highway Engineer Until Feb. 1.

Boyd W. Wierman, dismissed last week as resident state highway engineer in Richland county, will remain in charge of the office here until Feb. 1, he had been informed today by Division Engineer Murray D. Shaffer.

Wierman was to have left his office today, turning it over to Joseph D. Dune, chief deputy in the county office.

Although Shaffer could not be reached today, it was believed that the extension of Wierman's period of service was to permit the formation of a new division, possibly including Richland and Crawford counties.

Meanwhile, all the county resident engineers jobs in the state have been abolished in a reorganization of the state highway department, Highway Director Robert S. Beightler announced at Columbus.

Patrolmen said the man confessed burglary of two business establishments at nearby Lindsey and theft of two Sandusky county cars.

10 SURVIVORS TELL STORIES OF SEA PLUNGE

Conflicting Statements of Passengers, Crew Puzzle British Investigators.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK — Vague and at times contradictory statements today confronted investigators for the British government attempting to fix the cause for the crash of the Bermuda-bound airliner Cavalier Saurday in the Atlantic with a loss of three lives.

Although the last "S.O.S." calls from the falling ship indicated its four giant motors suddenly stalled because of ice conditions, the skipper, Capt. M. R. Alderson, insisted that was not the cause.

"The ice hazard was negligible," said Capt. Alderson, one of the 10 survivors rescued by the Esso Baytown, an oil tanker. "I have flown through much worse weather without mishap. Why all four motors failed, forcing the ship into mountainous seas, is a mystery to me."

Depositions taken from the 10 hardy survivors, now scattered to their homes and hotels, will be introduced at a formal inquiry to be held later in Canada or Bermuda. The present preliminary inquiry was being conducted by Capt. George C. Pirie, air attache at the British embassy in Washington.

Unable To Agree.

Meanwhile, the number of life preservers available for the passengers was a debated question. Captain Alderson said the survivors clung to nine lifebelts in the seas. Mrs. Edna Watson, one of the survivors, said there were six. A sailor on the rescue ship fixed the number at four.

There was also a dispute as to when the life preservers were handed out and whether the passengers were given sufficient warning to don their lifebelts.

Another unanswered question was that of why the ship was not landed while one or two of the motors were yet running instead of being set down on heavy seas in a "dead stick" landing, hazardous under most propitious circumstances.

Conflicting answers were given by survivors to the question of when the order was given for the fastening of safety belts and why it was ignored in some cases. J. Gordon Noakes, one of the three who died, was believed to have been standing in the plane when it struck the water. Suffering a badly gashed head, he was unconscious and sank to his death quickly.

Officially, the United States will not participate in the investigation although James Payton of the Civil Aeronautics authority will be present as an observer.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Nazis Guilty of Things They Charge to Jews But Germans in U. S. Balk

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—If you were to substitute the terms "international Nazi" for "international Jew" and "world nazidom" for "world Jewry" in many of the orations and writings which have come out of Germany these last few days and examine the attitude of the Nazi nation it would be clearly seen that the Nazi campaign closely follows the lines of the plot which the Nazis themselves attribute to the Jews.

There occurs in this material the same arrogant assumption of superiority and the same contempt for the rights and qualities of other peoples that the Nazis constantly impute to the Jews and denounce as a menace and insult. They hold themselves to be God's chosen people, with a private god of their own who detests all other peoples and rewards all acts which serve world Nazidom at the expense of the infidels of whatever race or nation.

* * *

That is the substance of one of their complaints against the Jews, and, having brooded on the case, they apparently were impressed by the merits of such a conspiracy if pressed with ruthless energy in their own interest. The most aggressive Nazi thought on the subject of religion goes so far as to claim that a Nazi is himself divine, because the Nazi god is the state.

By this process every faithful Nazi becomes a part of that god.

* * *

The international Nazi is permitted to take citizenship in this and other countries which will permit him to do so, but he is expected to remain faithful to Hitler and exhorted to create unrest among Americans of German blood, even as the Jews are accused of fomenting class warfare.

"Nation and state are not identical," says an item in a collection of Nazi papers on this subject contained in a book called "The German Reich and Americans of German Origin," published by the Oxford Press. "We sometimes have believed that only those belong to the Reich who live within the borders of the Reich, within the German state. We have assumed that nation and state were identical. What would become of those who have gone to foreign countries in former years because of economic necessity and lust for adventure? They are, nationally speaking, our brothers, our racial comrades, even if they possess American citizenship. Folkdom is much greater than citizenship in a country. Therefore, we rightly define as Germans all those of German descent and of German blood who live abroad."

* * *

The material is old and familiar, but the book serves as a handy collection. The reflection on the American patriotism of immigrants and the descendants of immigrants is characteristic of the Nazi attitude on the subject, since it was decided that by Nazifying all emigrants and their descendants everywhere the Hitler state would increase its numbers by millions and establish powerful outposts abroad.

"And thus I come to the main accusation raised against the foreign organization and its party comrades abroad," said E. W. Bohle, the leader of the Nazi foreign organization, in a speech to the party congress at Nuremberg in 1935—"That we are causing unrest in the German colonies and destroying their unity. If fight means unrest, then we admit that we created unrest. We fought to win the Germans abroad."

Americans of German blood and descent make their own answer to this attitude toward their citizenship and American patriotism. There has been violent disagreement in cultural organizations here over the efforts of the Nazi missionaries to make international Nazis of American citizens, and the insulting program has made little progress, thanks to the resentment of those whom it intended to win to treacherous activity.

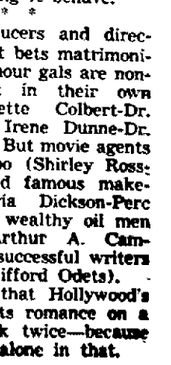
* * *

Still, examination of the Nazi declarations on the subject shows that the intention is to persuade decent American citizens, most of them natives and many ex-soldiers who fought against the Kaiser, to become international Nazis and betray their country in the manner which the Nazi propaganda constantly charges against the Americans of Jewish faith or blood.

All Nazi writings on the subject are alive with reminders that the Nazi is the superior of all other men and that the service of Nazidom justifies any betrayal of oath or trust, a common Nazi charge against the figure described as the "international Jew."

Their documents hold that such conduct is permissible, even holy, and sure to be rewarded by the Nazi god in the Nazi heaven. It seems a serious possibility that some genius of the Reich, on examining the Nazi propaganda against the so-called "international Jews" went to Hitler saying, "Boss, this is too good to waste. It is a perfect plan. Let us use it ourselves."

Hollywood Speaks---



—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Three movie starlets gave a party the other day to announce their engagements—respectively to an assistant director, a little-known actor, and a non-professional.

The average fan wouldn't know the names of any of the starlets; nor of their fiances. And it struck me as a perfect example of the romantic workings of the Hollywood caste system, which is predicated on fame rather than family, on earnings rather than social background.

And ridiculous and unnatural as the system is, strict adherence to it is still Hollywood's best happy-marriage insurance.

Three recent marital flops appear—from the outside at least—to have sprung from defiance of the system. Things looked rosy when Jackie Coogan and Betty Grable wed. Jackie was no longer in the big chips, but didn't he have all that money from his boyhood stardom? Well, he's trying to find out in court about that now. Meanwhile, he's making peanuts if that, and Betty's making a regular salary, about $700 a week, and so—they've separated.

Bette Davis was practically a star when she married Harmon O. Nelson, jr., her childhood sweetheart. "Ham" was doing all right with his orchestra, but he gave it up to try business in Hollywood. Bette's fame grew and grew. Sequel, from that or other causes: divorce.

* * *

ANN SHERIDAN and Edward Norris were both minor numbers in the studios when they married. But the dice threw larger portions of fame to Ann, lesser ones to Eddie. Sequel, from that or other causes: divorce.

Feminine stars can keep caste when they marry producers or directors or equally prominent actors. (Myrna Loy-Arthur Hornblow, Virginia Bruce-J. Walter Ruben, Joan Blondell-Dick Powell.) And because such marriages don't have professional jealousies to buck, they generally last longer.

The Leonard Penns (Gladys George) get along all right, despite the fact that the wife gets the big billing in the family—but that's unusual. The Gene Raymonds (Jeanette MacDonald) are up against a similar situation, and apparently making it behave.

* * *

NEXT to producers and directors, the best bets matrimonially for the glamour gals are nonpros, prominent in their own fields. (Claudette Colbert-Dr. Joel Pressman, Irene Dunne-Dr. Francis Griffin). But movie agents are all right, too (Shirley Ross-Ken Dolan,) and famous makeup men (Gloria Dickson-Perc Westmore,) and wealthy oil men (June Knight-Arthur A. Cameron) and very successful writers (Luise Rainer-Clifford Odets).

If you think that Hollywood's caste system puts romance on a cash basis, think twice—because Hollywood isn't alone in that.

HENLEIN STILL NAZI 'BOSS' IN SUDETENLAND

Husky Organizer Stands at 'Tops' With Hitler And His Word's Law.

(By Associated Press)

REICHENBERG, Germany. — Konrad Henlein, the husky Sudeten organizer who paved the way for Reichsfuehrer Hitler's march into Czechoslovakia, is the envy of Austrian Nazi leaders.

The bespectacled gym teacher from Asch remains the boss while others such as Arthur Seysz-Inquart—who played roles in Austria similar to his in Czechoslovakia—are bumping over political roads in rumble seats.

Henlein, who is good at turning handsprings, has all government economic and party power in his two big hands. As far as Sudetenland goes there is none other than he.

The Sudetenland fuehrer has been off the front pages of the world since the Munich settlement last Sept. 29 by which Germany acquired 3,000,000 Sudetens. But under the Nazis he has much greater power than he had under Czechoslovakia. Nothing moves in this region without his authority.

Henlein Has Confidence.

As soon as the German army moved in and established control, Hitler told Henlein to keep right on being the local fuehrer. Henlein has the confidence of the Sudetens and Hitler took advantage of that fact.

Hitler named him statthalter—or governor—gauleiter—or district leader—and topped those off with the much more weighty job of reich commissioner for integration of Sudetenland into the reich.

These gave Henlein all the strings to pull. Only Hitler himself stands above him in his own bailiwick.

It was not the same after the annexation of Austria last March 13.

Seysz-Inquart, who was named Austrian minister of interior and safety by Kurt Schuschnigg, last chancellor of independent Austria, at the fuehrer behest, signed the famous telegram asking Hitler to send the German army to Austria to "prevent bloodshed."

In the reorganization after anschluss, Seysz-Inquart became statthalter, an office which has small authority. Another man was named party leader and Berlin sent still another to Vienna above them both as reich commissioner.

Viennese say jokingly that Seysz-Inquart's reward was "presidency of the Alpine club."

Conditions in Austria were different from those in Sudetenland and there may have been sound reasons for sending in a "foreigner" and splitting power three ways.

But some informed persons believe the Nazis profited from their mistakes in setting up the Austrian regime within Germany and centered authority in Sudetenland in the local leader whom the people knew and trusted.

THEATERS

JOHNNY WEISSMULLER, swimming champ, only makes a picture once in a while—not even once a year—but he has just signed a new contract with M-G-M for three more years, with an option for four more, at a salary boost. . . . There is so much material for "Stanley and Livingstone," that part of it may be saved for a sequel. . . . Robert Taylor and Myrna Loy will be costarred in "Lucky Night." . . . Florence Rice will vacation in Florida with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Grantland Rice. Florence's latest picture is "Four Girls In White."...Buddy Ebsen probably will give up the stage and screen to finish his medical course at the University of Florida. . . .

Spies at Work.

"Smashing The Spy Ring," the Columbia drama featuring Ralph Bellamy and Fay Wray, will be one of the two features at the Madison the last half of the week, starting tomorrow. From federal court records is taken the story of the kidnaping of an army officer by foreign spies who hoped to force military secrets from him. The whole espionage workings, the stealing of White House stationery, the forging of passports, the use of beautiful women, is revealed in film drama. A Jane Withers comedy "Arizona Wildcat," in which Buck Withers rides again, is in the second feature.

Newspaper Story.

Joan Blondell as a young newspaper woman who becomes interested in the salvation of a bad boy who is to be sent to the reform school, goes through the heart-breaking disillusionment of seeing her best efforts go for naught—apparently—in "Off The Record," a newspaper story which brings the blond star and Pat O'Brien to the Ohio today. The picture runs through Friday. Bobby Jordan, as the problem boy, has an important role.

Modern Problem.

Love and marriage comes smack up against the problems of modern life in "The First 100 Years," in which Robert Montgomery plays a husband who doesn't earn nearly so much money as his wife, Virginia Bruce. The question of whether a wife with greater earning capacity should pay her husband alimony is a phase of the story, which is current on the Ritz screen. "Blockade," a dramatic picture of the Spanish war, is also shown, with Madeliene Carroll and Henry Fonda.

Custom-Built Father.

Deanna Durbin manufactures a father out of her imagination and then finds him in real life in "Mad About Music," in which the popular juvenile star appears at the Park. Deanna is the daughter of an American movie star, hidden away in a French girls' school in order to conceal her identity. Herbert Marshall is the make-believe father and Gail Patrick the mother. A Joe Penner comedy, "Mr. Doodle Kicks Off," rounds out the Park bill for the last half of the week, starting Thursday.

Family Steps Out.

It isn't often that the son and daughter of millionaires go to a night club with the butler and the personal maid, but in "Tovarich," it was different. The butler was a prince and the maid a Grand Duchess of the Russian nobility. Claudette Colbert and Charles Boyer are starred, and Anita Louise and Mellville Cooper are the son and daughter of the millionaires. Basil Rathbone is a distinguished but sinister figure as the Russian communist. "Tovarich," and "Big City," with Spencer Tracy and Luise Rainer are at the Majestic.

No More Waking Up Mornings Feeling Achy, Tired and Dizzy

Perrysville, Ohio, farmer's wife, feels like new person since Vendol relieved constipation. Now has good appetite and steady nerves.

MRS. EZRA F. SNYDER

Vendol grows more popular day by day as the many satisfied men and women living right here in town tell of the wonderful relief it gives. Here is what Mrs. Ezra F. Snyder of route 2, Perrysville, said in praise of this excellent compound of Nature's Roots, and Herbs combined with Mild Alkalines a few days ago to the Vendol Man in Central Drug Store.

"I was a victim of constipation, which caused no end of other troubles; I started every day by awakening with a headache and often so dizzy I couldn't stoop over, without everything turning black in front of me. I felt tired and achy, tongue was coated, and there was an awful taste in my mouth.

"I had no appetite but what I did eat disagreed with my stomach and caused bloating from sour, acid gas, with a choking feeling. I really felt awful some days.

"I heard a lot of praise for Vendol, so decided to give it a trial. I got a bottle and a box of the little Vendol Laxative Tablets, and soon found this medicine did all that was said about it.

"I never had anything to promote such smooth, natural, bowel movements as Vendol, and now there is no more waking up feeling achy, tired, dizzy or headachy. My tongue has lost the coating, the brassy taste in my mouth is gone, I enjoy hearty meals with no sour stomach, gas, bloating, or acid risings; then when night comes, I get restful sleep.

"It's a great experience to find relief like this and I am thankful to Vendol for all of it, and I hope many people suffering like I did will give it a chance to help them, too."

Don't delay giving this great compound of Nature's Roots and Herbs with Mild Alkalines a chance to help you. It is sold by leading druggists everywhere and the Vendol Man is daily at Central Drug Store, Cor. Main & Fourth Sts., to explain all about it. So, visit him soon.
